Man killed in hay-baling accident

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

A Hancock County farmer lost his life Thursday afternoon in an accident involving a hay bailer, according to Hancock County Sheriff Steve Garber.

"Jarvis P. Ladner, 65, of 22130 Fenton/Dedeaux Road, apparently died from injuries received from a roll hay baling machine during start-up operations," Hancock Investigator Kenny Hurt said Friday.

Hurt said, "Mr. Ladner and tractor operator Arthur L. (Heavy) Rollin were in the process of hooking up the hay bailer. Mr. Ladner told the tractor operator, who has worked on the farm for about ten years, to let the round down. He did and could not see Mr. Ladner.

"Rollin found his boss underneath the equipment at the back of the tractor. The shaken operator never really knew how Mr. Ladner got under the machine."

Hurt said sheriff's department personnel were notified of the incident at around 3 p.m. Thursday.

Deputies Tina Ladner and Thalus Ladner were the first officers on the scene.

Relay for Life

Cancer survivors take their "victory lap" Friday to kick off the Hancock County leg of the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life 2003. Organizers anticipated the event would raise approximately $40,000 for cancer research. The Relay took place at the county walking track in front of Hancock Medical Center on Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis. Participants walked for 12 hours to raise both awareness and funds.

"The Empty Table," set in honor of those who lost their battles with cancer.

Hancock County and Bay St. Louis and Waveland officials help the cancer survivors celebrate with a second-line lap around the walking track.

Favre: No gas hike needed

Bay City Council
debating adjusting customers' rates

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Staff Writer

Mayor Eddie Favre said Thursday that he sees no need to seek a gas rate hike for city customers at this time. He does see a need, however, to float a new bond issue to cover major work on the city's streets, and minor work on the drainage system.

"To me, the utility system is paying its own way," he said. "We're not at the point where we need to worry about rate hikes."

City Council members have questioned the financial health of the city's gas division in recent weeks, suggesting a gas rate hike may be in order to cover the escalating costs of buying natural gas to supply the system.

Clark shuts down Badge Charity fundraiser for deceptive practices

THE SEA COAST ECHO Secretary of State Eric Clark has issued an order against a Texas-based charity and its fundraiser for unfair and deceptive telephone soliciting practices. The order requires that the groups "claiming" to help police officers' stop illegal activities in Mississippi, and puts both organizations, on notice that the Secretary of State's office intends to revoke their respective registrations.

"This is the latest example of an unscrupulous outfit attempting to take advantage of Mississippians' support for law enforcement," Clark said. "These groups have gotten in trouble before, and this order puts them on notice that this behavior will not be tolerated in Mississippi."

Named in the order are: the National Association of Veteran Police Officers, based in Austin, Texas; its hired fundraiser -- East Coast Productions of Silver Spring, Maryland; and East Coast subcontractor Dytel and its agent Thurlan Darryl Yarbrough, based in Alabaster, Alabama. The order was prompted, by citizen complaints concerning fundraising tactics, including one Mississippian who received approximately 60 solicitation calls over the past four months. According to a sworn affidavit from Rankin County.

"On or about March 10, 2003, after having been called approximately three (3) times on that day, I stated to the Dytel caller that 'I am sick and tired of being repeatedly called and that I want to be placed on the 'Do Not Call List.' In response the Dytel caller said, 'What are you going to do about it? It won't do any good.' After realizing that my repeated requests to be placed on Dytel's do not call list were not only ignored, but caused further harassment, I decided to contact the Mississippi Secretary of State and file a complaint."

Other citizens report being "harassed" if they chose not to contribute.

In the most recent financial information filed with the Secretary of State's Office, the National Association of Veteran Police Officers report raising $1,042,633 in 2001. Of that amount, 65.5 percent was used to pay professional fundraisers; only $311,504 or 30.4 percent was used for charitable purposes. It is unclear how much, if any of the charity's activities benefited Mississippi police officers.

The Better Business Bureau recommends that 65 percent of a charity's receipts be used for charitable purposes, with no more than 35 percent used for fundraising and administrative costs.

East Coast Productions signed a consent agreement with the Secretary of State's Office in August 2002, admitting to violating state law by employing an unregistered fundraiser. The National Association of Veteran Police Officers signed a consent agreement with the Secretary of State's Office in September 2002, admitting to violations of state law by having an unregistered fundraiser solicit on its behalf.

Each group may face fines of up to $25,000 per violation of state law, Clark said.

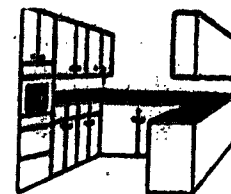

Clark warned that Mississippians should exercise caution when approached by so-called "badge organizations" soliciting donations. Donations to some groups, like the National Association of Veteran Police Officers, a 501(c)(4) organization under the Internal Revenue Code, are not deductible as charitable donations for federal income tax purposes.

The Secretary of State's Office enforces the law governing charitable solicitations in Mississippi. Citizens with questions or complaints may call 601-359-1633 or 888-236-6167.

Closing bases makes no sense

It is hard to imagine anyone actually wanting to reduce the size of our military in any way.

Given the events of the past three years, the threats we have faced and those we will face, it does not seem prudent for us to let our guard down at all.

Despite the obvious threats to our national security, there are those who wish to close military bases in the name of cutting costs. In reaction to this view I have introduced H.R. 1638, the Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC) Repeal Act of 2003.

This legislation would amend the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Act of 1990 to repeal the round of base closures and realignments authorized for 2005.

IN CONGRESS

By Representative Gene Taylor

The legislation of thirteen years ago authorized rounds of closings throughout the nineties that accounted for the loss of many valuable military assets. Further rounds have been authorized at the expense of national security.

I believe base closures offer no substantial cost savings and put us into a deficit of defense capability both strategically and in terms of unpredictable future defense needs. At the end of the Cold War and the break up of the Soviet Union it was hard to imagine the United States ever facing another enemy who could seriously threaten our national security.

Yet, in 2001 we saw the World Trade Centers come down and a plane crash into the Pentagon. We have sent troops to Afghanistan and Iraq to extinguish threats to America and establish civil governments.

Despite our success, terrorism will be a threat for many years to come and rogue nations will still be an obstacle for the peaceful people of the world.

North Korea now poses a threat as it has made its presence known on the nuclear stage and China's defense budget continues to grow.

As a House Armed Services Committee member I am especially concerned for the defense needs of our country. I believe reducing the number of bases we have will make them easier targets for future threats. Locating so many valuable military assets in very few places is dangerous.

Damned if we do - Damned if we don't

As Bay Saint Louis city employees, we respond to public comments about the condition of our city in private. Public responses are not in our job descriptions, but being human, we do have opinions on issues that affect Bay St. Louis. We are active stakeholders. We live here, too.

Every time someone gives us a compliment about how beautiful Bay St. Louis is they often ask why we don't look more like Fairhope, Ala., with hanging baskets of flowers in downtown or why we don't plant our highway medians like Gulfport. The answer is simple - vandalism, time and money.

The city of Bay Saint Louis has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to construct and maintain the Jimmy Rutherford Fishing Pier.

It is a public pier rebuilt to provide a variety of free recreational opportunities for our citizens and visitors. You will see Hancock County license plates more than any other in the parking places surrounding the pier.

The late Councilman at Large, Jimmy Rutherford, for whom the pier is named, must be rolling over in his grave to see how much this pier is vandalized on a daily basis.

Based on his council voting record we believe that he would have the pier closed and no more improvements made because of public disrespect of public property, or we would be paying a hefty use fee every time we walked out on the pier.

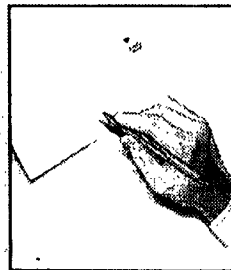

Forget the "free Tideland money" that has been used and understand some of what has happened to the pier since it was rebuilt. City workers spent three days replacing pier support post caps and on the first afternoon and evening every new and replaced cap had been poked with a sharp object making holes or sliced with a knife.

Reasonably intelligent people understand that the caps aren't there for decoration, but to protect and provide longer life for the pier. This was costly vandalism with no purpose except to destroy.

Letters to the Editor

Our letters policy

The Sea Coast Echo welcomes comments from its readers. Letters must be signed and include address or telephone number. Letters should be brief, preferably typewritten and double-spaced. Only one letter per writer per month. The editor reserves the right to edit or reject letters. Letters of thanks, expressions of appreciation and political endorsements are inappropriate.

We don't know who did the damage, but you would think that with as many people always on the pier that one person would inform law enforcement of the time the vandalism happened and provide a description of the vandal.

Perhaps no one did because they were busy setting fire to the end of the pier, or removing or breaking the lights. The lights cost you $125 each plus labor to repair. We were just positioning lights to bring more fish to the pier. They aren't convenient to break. You have to work hard to break them.

The vandalism to the pier is unconscionable. We are sick of having to spend our days cleaning up and repairing the mess that vandals create on the pier and throughout the city.

The public cried out for a pier comfort station. You got it and what did you do? You once again allowed vandals to immediately begin to carve their filthy suggestions, draw their unseemly pictures, find their lowest level of human hygiene behavior. Can you not find a more private place than under the pier to have sex and leave your spent condoms?

We do our best everyday to keep this city clean and beautiful. Why can't you help us? Why do you throw the trash barrels we provide in downtown and on the seawall in the water?

In 1941 the U.S. Pacific Fleet was crippled in a single blow at Pearl Harbor. A useful military strategy during the Cold War was to spread our military assets so as not to sustain much loss from an attack on one location.

As we all tragically learned on September 11, 2001, the Homeland is vulnerable to attacks from our enemies.

With each base closure we lose facilities and valuable space that we will need in the future. Right now the Navy is spending over $150 million to acquire and build an outlying field on the East Coast for the new FA-18 E/F aircraft. Naval Air Station Cecil Field outside of Jacksonville, Fla. would have accommodated these aircraft nicely with adequate runways and would allow for exercises to take place safely over the Atlantic Ocean. Unfortunately, Cecil Field was closed in the 1993 BRAC round.

The land was then transferred largely to the City of Jacksonville at no cost. If the military needs land for new equipment and installations, why are we closing existing bases? What new equipment will our defense call for in the future and how will we accommodate it? We cannot predict the future. But we can be prudent about our decisions and we should not take any amount of security for granted.

The savings trumpeted by the Department of Defense (DOD) cannot be supported by real data.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) of the government issued a report characterizing the BRAC savings as imprecise and rough approximations.

Relocating families and troops often requires construction of new housing facilities that run a substantial cost. In addition there is a great expense for environmental cleanup when closing a base.

The DOD has never had a firm grasp on this expense and does not count it in the total cost of closing. To date, the environmental cleanup costs have exceeded $10 billion. Estimated environmental costs beyond 2001 rose from $2.4 billion in 1999 to $3.5 billion as stated in last year's GAO report on purported BRAC savings.

If the DOD is cutting expenses to make money, why is it giving away valuable land as it did with Cecil Field instead of selling it off?

BRAC actions have a considerable effect on the communities around military installations. Bases are a source of pride for many municipalities.

Cities and states across the nation will spend scarce resources to make their facilities less attractive to BRAC. Those that lose their bases will feel betrayed by their government, and rightly so.

Military retirees often move to a community with a military base to utilize the medical and commissary facilities they are entitled to. Losing a base is a substantial blow to any community.

I believe closing bases

We wanted to provide nicer trash barrels for downtown, but we have to find ones we can chain to lampposts so they won't get stolen or rolled down the bluff. Does that give you a clue as to why we don't provide public flower baskets?

We want to make other improvements, improvements that would be cost effective and attractive, but we can't because we have to spend our time collecting beer bottles from the windows of the downtown bank were you left them lined up after having a good time at a local bar or restaurant or picking up the trash that blew out of the back of your pickup truck as you sped down Highway 90.

We want to make public park improvements. We can't because we have to spend our time cleaning up after your trip to the park.

It must be too inconvenient for you to walk to the trash cans we provide to throw away the refuse of your good time. Don't complain about comfort facilities provided, you keep them filthy and turn them over.

We want to continue making outdoor improvements to the Depot property. Why should we bother to decorate at Christmas time? You steal extension cords, shoot out the lights, throw rocks at the windows, and destroy the handicapped ramps with your skateboards.

We would love to have a new public gym facility. Why would we want to do that? You break in the gym in any way you can find.

You tear up the bleachers, steal the basketball nets, and tear up the concession stand. You kick in doors and walls.

You aren't everyone who uses a public facility or donates his time to improve a city property. We know there are good and caring citizens in Bay Saint Louis. But we need more help so we can better use our resources and really get on with the work of improvements.

Vandals are a menace to this community. Our police department is too small to stake out every public property and protect it. Where are you?

Vandals are primarily under 18, don't you know where your children are, what type of malicious mischief they may be involved in? Your lack of parental supervision is costing all of us the things we would like to have to enjoy our city more thoroughly.

If your children are unsupervised and you don't teach them to respect property you are just as much a vandal. If you don't report vandalism and follow through with pressing charges and testifying against vandals you are just as guilty.

If you have no respect for this community would you please move. We work hard and would have the energy to work harder if we didn't have to spend our time and your tax dollars cleaning up after vandals.

We know our mayor and council would hate putting a fee on using our public pier, but they may have no choice, and once more the good will have to pay for the bad.

You probably didn't want to hear our opinion, but thank you for listening. We would thank you even more if you would help us get rid of the vandals and the trash.

These opinions are a consensus among the rank and file employees of the city of Bay St. Louis' four departments:

College-bound students should register for summer ACT Exam by May 9

Nationwide exam scheduled for June 14

The next ACT Assessment will be administered nationwide on Saturday, June 14.

College-bound high school students must register for the college admissions and placement exam by May 9 - the deadline for having your registration postmarked.

There is a late registration postmark deadline of May 23, but an extra fee is charged for late registrations.

ACT scores are accepted by virtually all U.S. colleges and universities, including all Ivy League schools, and are used by colleges along with high school grade point average and other information for admissions decisions and to help place students in appropriate-level courses. The test fee is $25 ($28 in Florida).

Students can register for the ACT by getting a packet from their high school counselors or by registering online at ACT's website -- www.act.org.

The website also has helpful information, sample tests and the opportunity to order test prep materials including an interactive CD-ROM, ACTive Prep, which contains actual, timed tests and helps students build a study plan.

The ACT Assessment is given in all 50 states. It is curriculum-based, designed to measure a student's academic achievement and the appropriate course level for college placement.

It is not an "aptitude" test and the English section contains no analogies. There are four sections to the exam - English, reading, math and science. It reflects the curriculum that is taught in the nation's high schools, and the academic skills that students need to know when they begin their first year of college.

The ACT Assessment was taken over two million times last year by college-bound students.

Students who have already taken the ACT can take it again and try for a higher score.

Juniors can use their scores to examine academic weaknesses, take courses to correct those weaknesses and re-take the exam as seniors.

Students who take the exam more than once can report only their highest composite score to prospective colleges if they choose.

Gas -- Bay Council

Some of those numbers were laid out on the table Wednesday night, when Favre gave a mid-year budget report.

It projects the city's gas division spending $738,000 for the year, including the cost of gas, personnel and maintenance. It also shows the city expects to collect $900,000 in utility fees from customers over the year - a profit of $162,000.

Last month, some city council members said that when the cost of natural gas rises, the city should hike its rates accordingly. While the city has a basic minimum charge of $9 for gas service, its costs to buy gas average $3 to $5 per cubic foot, said the mayor. Even with additional charges the city pays to have the natural gas delivered to town, and the utility department's salaries and expenses, the basic charge usually is in line, Favre said.

If anything, Favre added, gas customers were subsidizing expenses in the water and sewer divisions before the city imposed a rate hike to cover those utility expenses.

Ward 1 council member Doug Seal said the arrangement seems to amount to a budgetary "crap shoot."

Ward 2 council member James "Jim" Thriffley III says the city's existing ordinances give the city the authority to raise and lower the basic charges, according to fluctuating prices the municipality faces.

That, says Favre, is not necessary at this time. But he's reminding council members that while the gas operation is more than meeting costs, there are other pending outlays in the utility division that will have to be financed. For instance, the city will have to re-work its four water wells before long, and there's a need to build yet another well. Meanwhile, the mayor plans to ask City Council to authorize a new bond issue Monday, to pay for up to $2 million in street paving and drainage work.

The sum should cover work sorely needed on about two-thirds of the city's street system, touching at least some portions of 40 miles of roadways. Some need a fresh overlay, while others need more extensive milling and resurfacing, Favre said. Relatively minor drainage work, like replacing broken culverts, also will be in the mayor's package.

City officials normally schedule some street resurfacing annually, but tight budgetary constraints have prevented that work in the last couple of years. About the only outlays for street surface matters have come from the city's pothole and maintenance moneys.

Favre told council members Wednesday the city will pay off a general obligation bond next March that helped finance purchase of a new fire truck. That should free up some bond financing outlays to help with the street resurfacing program, he said.

In other highlights of the mayor's mid-year budget review, Favre said:

- Revenues from state sales tax kickbacks and gaming revenues are running well ahead of projections for the year - possibly producing an extra $230,000 for the city's coffers by the year's end. Still, Favre asked council to leave the original budget's projections unchanged for now, as a precautionary measure.

- Officials have ordered 14 additional speed radar units to fully equip the police fleet, potentially boosting revenues from court fines.

- City salary and fringe benefit costs will be lower for the year than expected, due to the loss by resignation or retirement of six people.

- The city's costs for street lighting is expected to be almost $50,000 more than originally projected.

- Raises for city employees may be possible later in the year, Favre said, if some of the hoped-for revenue increases materialize.

- In adjusting outlays and revenues for the rest of the year, Favre asked council to add $11,000 for planning consultants, bringing the annual total to $43,500. The mayor said he's hoping the city can fund more outside work on a new zoning ordinance, as well as additional work on a proposed historic preservation ordinance.

- The city already has financed a consultant's study of the potential for annexations of the corporate limits, possibly doubling the city's six-square-mile footprint. Favre said he's hoping for a final report on that matter in 30 to 90 days, followed by a final decision by council on whether to proceed.

- Details of the annexation study will be made public when the study is complete, Favre said.

Nine-year volunteer Juanita Thorson of the Hancock County Food Pantry helped organize a mobile food bank in conjunction with Second Harvest of New Orleans, St. Vincent de Paul Women's group, and the Annunciation Parish Men's Club. Food was dispensed on Saturday at the Annunciation Parish Hall with the assistance of the Catholic Youth Organization. Young people greeted each participant at the door, helped them gather groceries and then helped them to their car. By 10 a.m. more than 50 of the close to 100 people who had signed up for food, had already been served. Pantry Director Tom McCormick said he wanted to issue a challenge to other community organizations and churches to hold similar events. Donations of $200 will purchase 5,000 pounds of food to be dispensed, said McCormick. Groups wishing to organize mobile food drives must do so through the Food Pantry. ## Farve, other mayors from major gaming areas to meet during SGS

Municipal leaders from several prominent regional casino markets will share their views and field questions from Southern Gaming Summit conference attendees the morning of May 7. "Meet the Mayors" is part of the Summit's "Diamond Decade Series," which celebrates a decade of gaming in Mississippi.

Eddie Farve, Mayor, City of Bay St Louis; Keith Hightower, Mayor, City of Shreveport; A.J. Holloway, Mayor, City of Biloxi; and Lorenzo Langford, Mayor, City of Atlantic City, are among the civic leaders who will participate in what promises to be a lively give-

The session will be moderated by Giselle Russell, President, Strategics Inc. Five separate seminars comprise the "Diamond Decade Series" during the Summit's two-day conference lineup, including Wednesday's opening session, "The Mississippi Miracle: The Next 10 Years of Challenges and Opportunities."

The two-day Conference, featuring 18 diverse educational seminars, begins at 9 a.m. Wednesday and Thursday, May 7 and 8. The Summit also features the largest gaming expo outside of Las Vegas, with more than 200 exhibitors. The full conference lineup and online registration are available at www.sgsummit.com.

More than 5,000 people are expected to attend this year's Southern Gaming Summit. Pre-registration to-date includes attendees from 40 states, Ontario, Quebec, Alberta, the United Kingdom, Australia, Puerto Rico and the Bahamas. The annual growth and popularity of Southern Gaming Summit proves benefits the local economy, with more than half of the attendees coming from outside of Mississippi, filling hundreds of Gulf Coast hotel rooms for several days.

Supercenters remake the retail landscape

BY BARBARA POWELL
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Wal-Mart Supercenters, both welcomed and reviled by communities and their residents, boost retail sales in counties that get them.

Meanwhile, surrounding counties without the gigantic stores take an economic hit.

That's the conclusion of a study on the affect of Supercenters on existing Mississippi businesses in rural trade areas, co-authored by a Mississippi State University professor.

A new Wal-Mart Supercenter, a combination general merchandise/food store, grabs sales from existing competing retailers in its host county. But it steals even more sales from retailers in surrounding counties as shoppers jump county lines to shop at the Supercenter.

The result: Five years after a Supercenter opens, total retail sales have increased by 4 percent in host counties but declined by 9 percent in surrounding counties. The impact is even more devastating than the percentage implies: Even before the Supercenter opened, surrounding counties already had much weaker sales than the county Wal-Mart selected for its Supercenter.

"What we do know is that surrounding counties get hurt," said Albert Myles, co-author of the study and a professor at MSU's Extension Service.

The study looked at 18 Wal-Mart Supercenters in 18 rural counties. Mississippi has a total of 42 Supercenters in 39 counties. Two will open soon locally; one in Pass Christian and another in Waveland.

Here are some of the study's conclusions:

In host counties, annual sales for general merchandise, including all sales from the Wal-Mart Supercenter, increased 59 percent by five years after the Supercenter's opening. Since total retail sales in the county increased only 4 percent during that period, the implication is that the Supercenter was taking sales from other general merchandisers both in the county and from its neighbors.

Wal-Mart Supercenters captured most of their sales from food stores in their host counties, where sales fell 16.8 percent. Shoppers in surrounding counties continued to buy most of their food at their local grocery stores.

Wal-Mart also took sales from stores selling competing merchandise, like gift shops and sporting goods, in both host and surrounding counties. General merchandisers, furniture and building materials stores in surrounding counties also lost significant sales.

But Wal-Mart benefited furniture stores in its host county by making the surrounding area a retail shopping destination. Building material retail sales also increased in host counties, but partly because Wal-Mart tends to attract other big-box retailers like Home Depot, which in turn lure shoppers from surrounding counties.

Oxford got its first Wal-Mart Supercenter last August after several years of intense debate within the community. Opponents feared Wal-Mart would hurt existing retailers.

It's too soon to tell the ripple effects on the local economy and surrounding counties. For sure, though, the new Supercenter is keeping some residents from traveling 24 miles to Bateville's Wal-Mart Supercenter. And Oxford's Wal-Mart Supercenter has already attracted more retailers around it.

"We're going to have a Home Depot right across from the Wal-Mart and there's a Chili's (restaurant) that's opened up there," Oxford Mayor Richard Howorth said. "In this community, the vast majority like Wal-Mart. They believe they will have a broader choice and more competitive pricing."

Williams to represent state in support of NASA budget

Tish Williams, Director of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, will join with 100 others from a 10 state area to support a robust NASA budget and to help promote the benefits of human space flight programs.

During the trip, she is representing Partners for Stennis, a regional organization to support NASA - John C. Stennis Space Center.

Williams said that from

May 5-7, she will meet one on one with members of the Mississippi Congressional Delegation as part of the National Keep It Sold Coalition (NKIS). NKIS is a multi-state grassroots space advocacy group.

She also noted that other states have large delegations representing their area, and as the only representative from Mississippi and Louisiana, she is hopeful that her trip this year can be used as a fact finding mission for area citizens to get behind this annual program next year.

Specifically, she will share with Congressional leaders the economic impact figures that were recently released by Stennis Space Center. During 2002, Stennis Space Center had a direct economic impact on Mississippi and Louisiana of $559 million.

She noted, "what if Stennis Space Center had not been here in 2002?" The study indicates that employment would have been reduced by 33,000 jobs. Personal income would have been reduced by $1.072 billion and retail sales would have been reduced by $429 million.

"The people of Hancock County salute our economic partner, John C. Stennis Space Center, our unique federal and commercial city," she said. "Our mission is to embrace Stennis and to demonstrate, through activities like this, how much we value them as an economic partner and as contributing citizens in our community," said Williams.

Two Coast companies awarded Navy contracts

U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor has announced that Roy Anderson Corporation of Gulfport and Seemann Composites, also of Gulfport, have been awarded contracts to perform work for the Navy. Anderson has been awarded an $8.7 million contract for design and construction of enlisted and officer housing units at Naval Air Station Meridian. Seemann received a $9.4 million contract for engineering and fabrication services for the Navy's Composite Advanced Sail for the Virginia class of submarines.

According to Taylor, Roy Anderson Corporation will demolish 58 existing housing units at Naval Air Station Meridian and will design and construct 47 new family housing units. The company also has an option for an additional eight units. Seemann Composites will perform work on the Navy contract at the company's Gulfport facility. Seemann Composites, Mississippi State University and the Mississippi Polymer Institute are working together on the Navy program to increase the load carrying capacity and stealth characteristics of submarine sails.

Louisiana College signs Hancock duo Ladner & Strief

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

Last week, Hancock High School seniors Cody Ladner and Jeremy Strief signed national letters of intent to play for Louisiana College for the next four years. However, it almost didn't happen.

About a month ago, both players attended a camp for unsigned seniors at Millsaps College in Jackson. There, the two players showcased their skills for a host of collegiate coaches. It was during this camp that Gene Rushing of Louisiana College in Pineville became enamored with the duo from Kiln. Ladner and Strief will continue the long line of tradition that is Hancock basketball.

Ladner, a 6-4 all-purpose player, averaged 15 points, 6.5 rebounds, and 3 assists per game for the Hawks. While Ladner played every position on the court for Hancock, he is projected to play shooting guard for Louisiana College.

Ladner stated, "I am looking forward to continuing my basketball at Louisiana College. My visit was terrific. The team members, coaches, and other students that I interacted with were extremely nice. They answered all my questions concerning basketball and academics. It will be difficult to leave Hancock basketball and all of its traditions; however, I know that I am always a part of it. My teammates these last four years have been very special. I am very close to them and it will be hard playing without them. I wouldn't trade them or the time that we shared for anything. But, I will have the opportunity to continue playing with Jeremy Strief. That is something that I am looking forward to because it is not often that teammates can spend high school and college together on the court."

Jeremy Strief, a 5-11

point guard, averaged 7 points, 4 rebounds, and 6.5 assists per game for the Hawks. However, it wasn't his stats that made him the player he is. It was Strief's attention to the mental part of the game and running the team that made him so valuable. Strief commented, "The Louisiana College system is a lot like our system at Hancock. Coach Gene Rushing wants the ball in the point guard's hands. The guards push the ball up the floor quickly to catch the opponent in transition and try to get a three-pointer. My visit to Louisiana College was great. The people that we met were very welcoming and treated us with the utmost respect. I am looking forward to continuing my basketball career with Cody (Ladner). It will make things much easier as far as adjusting to the differences between high school and college."

Ladner and Strief have played together all their years at Hancock and have also played under Coach Michael Ray Ladner during those years. Coach Lander stated, "I am very proud of them. Jeremy (Strief) and Cody (Ladner) have played extremely hard for Hancock. It is very rewarding for them and our program to have players move on to college competition. Both of them work very hard in everything that they do and that gives them a tremendous upside for Louisiana College. Cody (Ladner) has been a pleasure to coach. He is a tremendous talent and a well-rounded person. Jeremy (Strief) is a late-bloomer on the basketball court and didn't get a lot of varsity minutes until his senior season. But, he is a hard-nosed player and gives whatever it takes to win. Off the floor, he is a very good student and solid leader. Louisiana College is getting two gems in Ladner and Strief."

Other schools had shown interest in both players. Ladner received interest from Mississippi College and Pearl River Community College while Strief was contacted by Mississippi College and Belhaven College.

Louisiana College is a Division III school and a member of the NCAA. Most conference opponents are schools located in Arkansas and Texas. Mississippi College is the only in-state school that plays in the same conference with the Pineville school. Ladner and Strief report for camp in mid-August. Best of luck to these high-flying Hawks in the future!

Save nature: Sign up now for Conservation Reserve program

BY JAMES L. CUMMINS

The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) is designed to improve our nation's natural resources. Participants voluntarily remove environmentally sensitive land from agricultural production by entering into 10 to 15-year contracts.

By reducing water runoff and sedimentation, CRP also protects groundwater and helps improve the condition of lakes, rivers, ponds and streams. The CRP is a major contributor to increases in wildlife populations.

The CRP general sign-up will be held from May 5 through May 30. Producers can sign up at local U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) service centers or conservation district offices.

Aside from the general sign-up, the CRP's continuous sign-up program will be ongoing.

The USDA is making a special effort to help enhance wildlife habitats and air quality by setting aside 500,000 acres for bottomland hardwood tree planting. Continuous sign-up for hardwood planting will start after the general sign-up.

Wildlife Mississippi is especially pleased with the $500 million continuous sign-up for bottomland hardwoods. The Foundation conceptualized this idea to address bottomlands not eligible for the continuous sign-up for buffers and the Wetland Reserve Program. Areas such as bottomlands of the floodplains around river basins are eligible. These include: Big Black River, Coastal, Mississippi River, North Independent, Pascagoula, Pearl, South Independent, Tennessee, Tombigbee and Yazoo.

Special thanks goes to The White House and the USDA for developing this special sign-up to address flood plains. President Bush has taken his personal knowledge of the beauty and ecological value of hardwood forests and has developed important policy to restore them throughout our nation. This continuous sign-up for hardwoods will greatly improve water quality, restore wildlife habitat for countless species and sequester over 200 million tons of carbon from our atmosphere. The Bush Administration is to be commended for developing policy that will improve the quality of life of millions of Americans.

Congressmen Bennie Thompson (D-MS) and Chip Pickering (R-MS) and the National Hardwood Lumber Association supported the effort.

Land enrolled as continuous sign-ups for the CRP will receive an annual rental payment. This payment is based on the soil type being offered and the average dry land cash rental rate for the county where the land is located. Special incentives, in the form of additional dollars paid to the producer, are added. Cost-sharing, at a rate of 50 percent, is available to establish the desired cover. Contracts under the continuous CRP sign-up are 10-15 years in length depending on the conservation practice.

James L. Cummins is Executive Director of the Mississippi Fish and Wildlife Foundation in Stoneville, known as "Wildlife Mississippi."

Marine Corps Lance Cpl. Robert C. Day, III, a 1999 graduate of St. Stanislaus High School, Bay St. Louis, recently made his way through the Straits of Gibraltar and into the Mediterranean Sea while assigned to the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit, based in Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Day is one of more than 4,000 Pacific Fleet Sailors and Marines aboard the ships of the USS Iwo Jima Amphibious Ready Group.

Day's unit is an expeditionary intervention force with the ability to rapidly organize for combat operations in virtually any environment.

MEUs are composed of more than 2,000 personnel and are divided into an infantry battalion, aircraft squadron, support group and command element. With this combination, Day's unit supplies and sustains itself for either quick mission accomplishment or clearing the way for follow-on forces.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Shannon R. Donner, daughter of Juanita K. Donner of Bay St. Louis, Miss., is halfway through a scheduled six-month deployment while assigned to the aircraft carrier USS Harry S. Truman home ported in Norfolk, Va.

Donner is one of more than 8,000 Atlantic Fleet Sailors and Marines on a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea and Arabian Gulf while aboard the ships and squadrons of the USS Harry S. Truman Carrier Battle Group.

During the first half of the deployment, Donner's ship took part in training exercises in the Mediterranean Sea and made a port visit to Koper, Slovenia. The Sailors and Marines had the opportunity to shop, sightsee and enjoy the local culture and cuisine.

Carriers such as USS Harry S. Truman, are deployed throughout the world to maintain U.S. presence and provide rapid response in times of crisis. They serve as a highly visible deterrent to would-be aggressors, and are equipped with the most versatile and powerful weapons and aircraft available.

Donner is a 1997 graduate of Kings Christian High School of Lemoore, Calif. and joined the Navy in January 2000.

Marine Corps Pvt. Joshua F. Dastugue, son of Carol F. and Tyrone F. Dastugue of Bay St. Louis, Miss., recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

Dastugue successfully completed 12 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally.

Dastugue and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a. m., by running three miles and performing calisthenics. In addition to the physical conditioning program, Dastugue spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training. They performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry unit during field training.

Dastugue and other recruits also received instruction on the Marine Corps' core values -- honor, courage and commitment, and what the words mean in guiding personal and professional conduct.

Dastugue and fellow recruits ended the training phase with The Crucible, a 54-hour team effort, problem solving evolution which culminated with an emotional ceremony in which the recruits were presented the Marine Corps Emblem, and were addressed as "Marines" for the first time since boot camp began.

Dastugue is a 2002 graduate of Bay High School of Bay St. Louis, Miss.

Air Force Airman 1st Class Eric W. Hunt has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

During the six weeks of training, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization, and military customs and courtesies; performed drill and ceremony marches, and received physical training, rifle marksmanship, field training exercises, and special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Hunt is the son of Yolanda Hunt of Ulman Ave., and Wayne Goff of Cathy Drive, both of Bay St. Louis, Miss.

He graduated in 2002 from Bay High School, Bay St. Louis.

His ship was one of the first of 30 U.S. Navy and coalition ships to launch Tomahawk Land Attack Missiles (TLAMs) during military operations to disarm Iraq.

Esher's ship is one of the most powerful warships ever put to sea. The computer-based AEGIS weapons system is the heart of the ship's warfighting capability.

An Antonov 124 Russian flew in to Stennis International Airport early Saturday morning. The Russian-built heavy transport plane has the largest payload and the largest accessible dimensions of any production plane in the world. The crew was here to load up military supplies with the help of the U.S. Marine Corp. An overnight stay was planned. How will the crew spend their time? Shopping, of course. "It is fun shopping in America," said Captain Victor Black.

Early Sunrise offers beauty

SOUTHERN GARDENING
BY NORMAN WINTER
MSU Horticulturist
Central Mississippi
Research & Extension Center

Sitting at your local garden center just waiting for adoption is one of the most easily grown perennials, the Early Sunrise coreopsis. Known botanically as Coreopsis grandiflora, it is native to North America and offers brilliant golden-yellow flowers borne on 2-foot-long stems all summer. If that isn't enough, the Early Sunrise will return to your garden next year.

Early Sunrise, an All-America Selections Gold Medal winner, is cold-tolerant, hardy to zone 4, and heat-tolerant to zone 9. It is also drought-tolerant and tough enough to be planted street-side. This is one of the best perennials for the beginning gardener, guaranteeing a green thumb.

Select a site in full sun for optimal growth, although I have seen incredibly showy displays in morning sun and afternoon shade.

The only mandatory requirement for growth is well-drained soil. High fertility is not necessary, but if drainage is suspect, improve the soil by incorporating 3 to 4 inches of organic matter, tilling to a depth of 8 to 10 inches.

Set out nursery-grown transplants in early spring after the last frost at the same depth they were growing in the container, spacing plants 12 to 15 inches apart. Hybrid seed also can be planted with blooms in the first season.

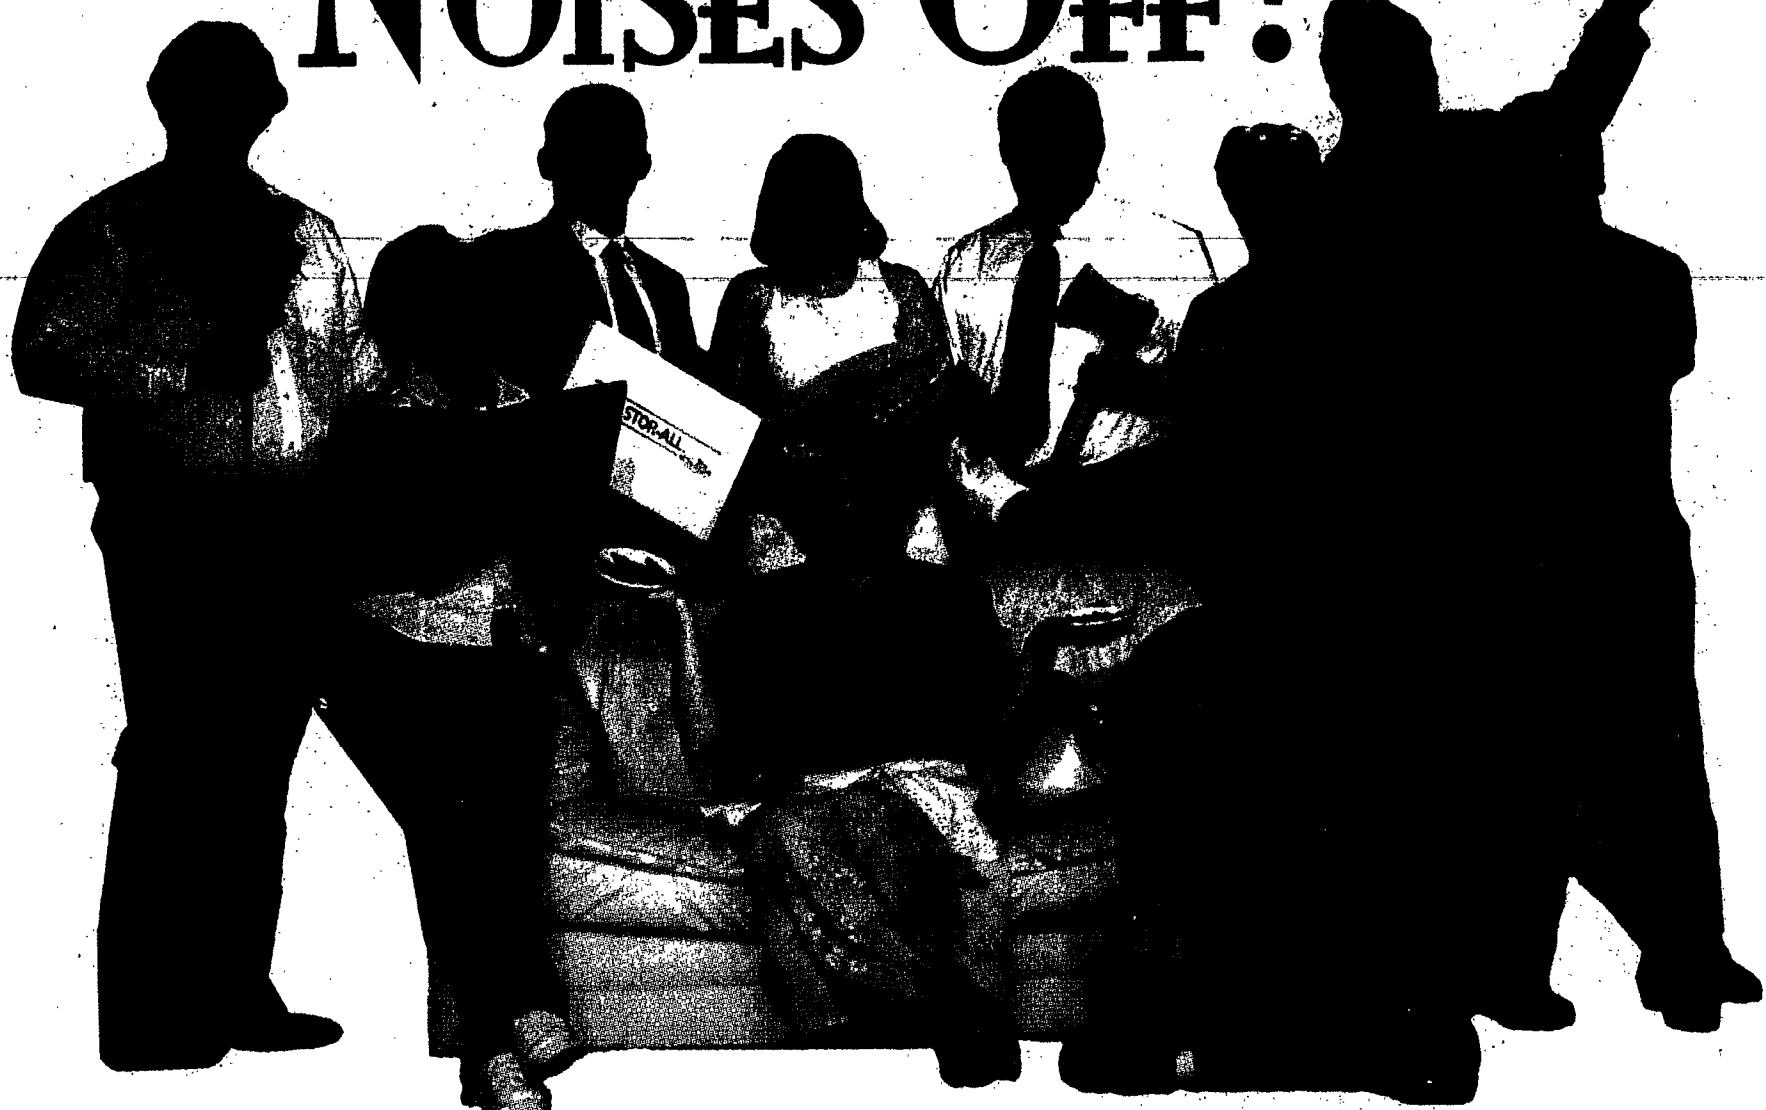

One key cultural technique with the Early Sunrise coreopsis is to remove old flowers. This keeps the plant tidy and the blooms producing, and reduces the possibility of old flowers getting pathogens that can infect the rest of the plant. Seeds saved from one plant will not produce the same type. Early Sunrise probably will need dividing by the third year to keep the quality of the plant at its best. Clumps may be divided in spring or fall.

Early Sunrise coreopsis has unbeatable color for the perennial or cottage garden. Some of the prettiest combination plantings occur in the late spring garden when grown with the old-fashioned larkspur.

Another outstanding spring planting combines Early Sunrise with the tough-as-nails oxeye daisy Leucanthemum vulgare.

Curtain up for NOISES OFF!

A scantily clad, leggy blonde. Several near-death experiences with an ax. Endless plates of sardines. Thus, the life of a cast member in Bay St. Louis Little Theatre's production of "Noises Off!"

I can assure you the last several weeks of my life have been most interesting. Being a part of a 10-member ensemble cast who portray a group of actors desperately trying to pull off a difficult show has been anything but dull.

Of course, "Noises Off!" is, by nature, a difficult show in itself. Allow me to educate you about this chaotic comedy.

THE PLAY
"Noises Off!" leads audiences through the last rehearsal, the opening night and a later performance of the sex farce "Nothing On."

The director has pulled together six actors in two weeks to rehearse this complicated comedy with the help of a stage manager and two assistant stage managers.

Pulling the show together, however, ends up being trickier than the play itself. Romance, jealousy and misconceptions all wreck havoc upon the show.

THE CAST

Lenny Scardino plays the director, Lloyd, who makes every possible effort to save the sinking show.

"With only two weeks of rehearsal, Lloyd has reached his maximum frustration level and simply wants to get the show behind him," said the 25-year-old Columbia native.

Scardino discovered he has a few things in common with his character.

"Lloyd's sarcastic, and that fits me perfectly," the Long Beach resident said. "Deep down, though, he's a nice guy and wants the cast to just do the best they can; just like me."

Fortunately for Scardino, "Noises Off!" has been a more favorable experience than "Nothing On" was for Lloyd.

"It impresses me greatly when a cast is put together that meshes this way. You simply can't have a bad show," he said. "It's all about fun, and this has been the most fun group I've had the pleasure to work with."

When asked what his favorite part of the show was, Scardino's response was minimal.

"One word — boxers," he said. Scardino is one of several performers who loses his pants during the show.

Another "revealing" character is the half-deaf Selsdon, an old-timer who portrays a burglar.

John Anderson, of Waveland, has the privilege of playing this role.

"Selsdon is a drunk, lecherous old gossip of moderate acting ability," the 40-year-old said. "He is 'working' what is perhaps his last gig."

This Las Vegas native said he, however, likes his character for his honesty, transparency and complete lack of inhibitions.

Enter Michelle Kessling, who plays the motherly actress Belinda.

"Belinda is definitely the most sane of the cast members of 'Nothing On' and possibly the sanest character in 'Noises Off,'" said the Picayune resident. "She's also the one who has the most success at keeping things going as smoothly as possible, especially in Act Three. Of course, she can only do so much. She also loves a good bit of gossip, and in this show, there's plenty for her to keep up with."

This 25-year-old Chalmette, La. native said she can relate to her character on some levels.

"Belinda is very maternal," Kessling said. "I am not. However, she seems to be in control more so than the other characters, and I'm a bit of a control-freak."

Threading the needle the hard way

(Mr. La Violette is taking six weeks of to promote his new book, Sink or be Sunk. In his absence, we are publishing a series of his early stories on sailing in the Mississippi Sound. We hope you enjoy them.)

I loved to take my small Sunfish out and go "storming" with Gretal, our old Weimaraner. I'd wait until a good wind or a small afternoon storm sprang up and, calling Gretal (I needed her 90 pounds as ballast), I would swiftly rig the Sunfish and the two of us would race out to the deeper water and run the winds of the storm.

I had a number of cheater gear on the boat to help me: grippers to hold the sail's payout, an extra long centerboard, and an extended tiller so that I could hike out farther with one foot on the side of the boat and the other wrapped in a bungee tied to the cockpit. Gretal and I were good at it and in no time we were moving in an exhilarating run through the rough sea.

But despite this, we would invariably get into trouble in the middle of a screaming reach and the boat would overturn, throwing Gretal and me into the water and a confusion of sail and hard hull. When I came up, I would find Gretal paddling around, patiently waiting for me to right the boat. This wasn't always easy. The wind was strong and since the water was fairly shallow, it would push the upright hull through the water and drive the mast into the bottom. I would often have to dive down and, standing in the dark and muck at the bottom, pull the mast loose and then quickly come up and right the boat before it happened again. Then I would climb in, pull Gretal back aboard, she would lick my face, and we would take off for more of the same.

This was fun and we both loved it. She was great company and would always be eager to go out with me. Even when there were no hard winds, the two of us would go out and chase birds off the scattered pilings.

She would stand on the open bow or the area aft of the cockpit and bark insults at the birds. Her rough paws were ideal to keep her footing and, locking her knees, she would stand secure as I maneuvered to better address the birds. Once however, I turned too abruptly and I had the incredible sight of her flying stiff-legged off the boat, as if in some Wile E. Coyote cartoon, a look of wide-eyed surprise on her face just before she hit the water.

We had our own private game of "thread the needles."

This involved going between a set of five parallel rows of pilings positioned a good distance from the beach. I have no idea why the pilings were there; they were there when I came to Waveland and they are still there today. I can see them from my office window as I type this, although they are a little the worse for wear from Hurricane Elena in 1986.

Kiln blood drive set for Tuesday

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Kiln Memorial VFW Post 6285 Ladies Auxiliary will host a Community Blood Drive for the Blood Center of Southeast Louisiana and Southern Mississippi on Tuesday, May 6th. The Community Blood Drive will be held at the Kiln VFW Post on VFW Road off Highway 603 from 12 Noon until 8:00 p.m. A picture I.D. will be required from those wishing to donate blood.

In a recent presentation by Jill Peterson, The Blood Center Mississippi Donor Resources Supervisor and Colleen Toye, Territory Representative, to the members of the VFW Ladies Auxiliary, The Blood Center needs to collect between 300 and 350 pints of blood a day to serve the community. It is estimated that the majority of the population will require a blood transfusion by the age of 72.

"Anyone could be hospitalized or become seriously ill and require blood," commented Ladies Auxiliary member and Treasurer, Tere Carlin, "I was most fortunate to have several members of this auxiliary come to my aid and donate blood on my behalf when I became ill last year. This Community Blood Drive is extremely important to help offset critical blood shortages in Coastal Mississippi.

The Blood Center is the exclusive provider of blood to several hospitals including Biloxi Regional Medical Center, Ocean Springs and Singing River Hospitals, Crosby Memorial Hospital in Picayune and North Shore Hospital in Slidell.

For more information about the Community Blood drive, please contact Maydell Hernandez at the Kiln VFW, 228-255-1259.

Local Cancer Survivor Awarded College Scholarship

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Mid-South Division of the American Cancer Society is pleased to announce that Carrie Roche has been awarded a $1,000 college scholarship. The scholarship will be presented at the Relay For Life in Hancock County on May 2.

Scholarships were awarded based on financial need, leadership, academic achievement and community service. To be eligible, candidates must be under 25, have had a cancer diagnosis before age 21 and be a Mid-South resident.

Students must also have a GPA of at least 2.5 and been accepted to an accredited school.

Last year, the Mid-South Division of the American Cancer Society awarded 167 scholarships to survivors in Alabama, Arkansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee. Since the inception of the program in 2001, the American Cancer Society has helped many hundreds of cancer survivors attend college through the college scholarship program. "Many cancer patients cannot afford college after paying high medical bills," said Lori Langner, quality of life director for the American Cancer Society. "This often gives young cancer patient an opportunity to attend college. Some of them would not be able to attend if not for our scholarship program."

For more information about this scholarship program, call the American Cancer Society toll-free at 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

The American Cancer Society is the nationwide, community-based, voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing cancer, saving lives and diminishing suffering from cancer, through research, education, advocacy and service.

Lady Bruce and Jane Lamb were recently honored at a special reception for 2002 National Board certified teachers at the Mississippi Department of Education in Jackson. Both local residents successfully certified the area of "Adolescent and Young Adult Career and Technical Education." Bruce, a former Marketing Instructor and DECA sponsor at Bay High, now teaches Lodging and Hospitality at Hancock County Vo-Tech Center. Lamb, longtime Bay High Marketing and Cooperative Education Coordinator and DECA sponsor, currently teaches Cooperative Education at the Biloxi High Career Technology Center. Lamb stated, "Lady Anne and I had some wonderful experiences teaching and sponsoring DECA together. It was a delight to work again as a team as we toiled over the National Boards process." Lamb and Bruce brought a total of over 130 Bay High students to the National Level of DECA competition over a seven year period, and many of their students are in management positions throughout this community. ## Musgrove presents awards to Jobs for Mississippi Graduates

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Gov. Ronnie Musgrove presented the Chairman's Award to 33 students from across the state at the 10th Annual Jobs for Mississippi Graduates Career and Development Conference held yesterday in Jackson. Musgrove praised the students for their commitment to improving their skills for Mississippi's job market in the 21st century.

"Mississippi's image in 2003 is unlike anything anyone could have imagined," Musgrove said. "It's an image of people working in highly-skilled, well-paying jobs, of children in classrooms equipped with the technology to bring the world to their desk, and of global companies looking for a place to do business in the state."

"It's an image of success that you're helping to build every day," he said.

The Chairman's Award is presented to students who have made the most significant progress since enrolling in the Jobs for Mississippi Graduates program. This year's local winners and their schools were: Nichols Ruben, Pass Christian; Misty Bennett, Bay High; Addotta Jordan, Hancock High School.

For more information on the Jobs for Mississippi Graduates program, call 978-1711.

OLA Student Recognized for Volunteer Service

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Miriam Ladner, a junior at Our Lady Academy in Bay St. Louis, has been honored for her exemplary volunteer service with a state-level Certificate of Excellence from The 2003 Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program.

A resident of Bay St. Louis, Ladner is the daughter of Catherine and Luther Ladner.

Presented annually by Prudential Financial in partnership with the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP), The Prudential Spirit of Community Awards honor young people across America for outstanding community service activities.

The Certificate states that Ladner "has demonstrated exceptional initiative in service to the community, and has therefore been designated one of the top student volunteers in Mississippi."

Ladner was nominated for this award by Our Lady Academy. Ladner, known as Mimsie by her classmates, earned her award by starting a Community Outreach program in April, 2002. She named the organization "Project Reach Out," invited friends to join her, started a website to spread the word, and wrote local companies and businesses for financial sponsorships.

"I believe my being involved with and starting 'Project Reach Out' inspired other teens to get involved in volunteering," said Ladner. "It also has made an impact on the people I've helped, letting them know that there are people in the world with caring hearts, including teenagers."

Now a year old, "Project Reach Out" has included visiting residents in nursing homes; helping disabled children learn how to ride horses in the "Gaits for Success" program; collecting food for the needy and games and toys for children; raising money for a local girl with cancer, and making mission trips to foreign countries to give relief ministry.

The Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program, now in its eighth year, also recognizes the top middle level and high school volunteer in each state, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia, and will name America's top ten youth volunteers in May. Nearly 150,000 young people across America have been considered for these awards since the program began in 1995.

Patricia Williams, OLA '99, was recognized as Mississippi's top high school Youth Volunteer for 1999 by the Prudential Spirit of Community program and received a silver medallion, $1,000 award and an all-expense paid trip to Washington, D.C.

"All of these extraordinary young people exemplify the spirit of community that is so important to the future of our cities, towns and neighborhoods," said Art Ryan, chairman and CEO of Prudential Financial. "By honoring them, we hope to not only give them the recognition they so richly deserve, but also to inspire others to follow their example."

Program applications were distributed through all public and private middle level and high schools, Girl Scout councils, county 4-H organizations, American Red Cross chapters, YMCAs, Camp Fire USA councils and Volunteer Centers last September. After Local Honorees were named, state-level judges selected States Honorees, Distinguished Finalists and Certificate of Excellence recipients.

Hancock High Theatre offers 'Marigolds' May 16-17

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Hancock High School Theatre hopes to honor the memory of young adult novelist Paul Zindel with a production of "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds," for which he won the Pulitzer Prize in 1970.

The play opens Friday, May 16, and runs again Saturday, May 17, with the doors of Hancock High School's Commons opening at 7 p.m. both nights. Tickets are $5.

In this play, Zindel, who died on March 27 of this year, tells the story of an abusive single mother named Beatrice and her strained relationships with her daughters, Ruth and Tillie.

With piercing, yet sympathetic honesty, he presents a family burdened by poverty and loss and struggling with mental and emotional problems suffered by both Beatrice and Ruth.

Only Tillie looks to the future with any optimism. Tillie has fallen in love with science and her success in the school science fair finally gives her family something to be proud of. However, their troubled relationships threaten to spoil even that.

Rebekah Skinner, 18, a senior from Bay St. Louis plays Beatrice. A sophomore also from Bay St. Louis, Pamela Lady, 16, plays Ruth. Seventeen-year-old Samantha Gregory, a junior from Diamondhead, plays Tillie.

The show also stars Jessica LaRouge, an 18-year-old senior from Diamondhead, as Nanny and Summer Zulli, a 17-year-old junior from Picayune, who plays Tillie's only competition at the science fair, Janice Vickery.

Hancock High School's drama coach, Jay Coker, directs with the aid of student and stage manager Kadi Zahniser, 18, a senior from Diamondhead.

Call 228-467-2251 for directions and more information.

Hancock High School Theatre's "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" will star (from left) Rebekah Skinner, Pamela Lady and Samantha Gregory.

'Noises Off'

Kim Christina-Decidue said she has more in common with her character's character. Decidue plays Dotty who plays the "Nothing On" character Mrs. Clackett.

"Dotty is an aging actress who convinces herself she's still got it by becoming romantically involved with younger men," said the 41-year-old New Orleans native. "Drama is her reality, and she makes sure to include as much as possible in her everyday life."

As from Mrs. Clackett, the Bay St. Louis resident said she is a "forgetful British" housekeeper who plans to sit down with a nice plate of roasted sardines and watch the television.

"I don't think I'm much like Dotty, but I can certainly sympathize with Mrs. Clackett wanting nothing but a little rest and relaxation on her day off," Decidue said. "On most weekends, you'll find me sitting on the sofa with my feet propped up. Goldfish crackers is as close as I get to sardines, however."

John Killinger, an 18-year-old Diamondhead resident, plays Tim, the stage manager with a serious fear of public speaking.

"I am like my character in a sense that I do a lot of tech work," said the Metairie, La. native. "I, however, have no form of stage fright."

Killinger said his favorite part of "Noises Off" is the pandemonium that breaks loose throughout the entire show.

The show's momentum is also appealing for 14-year-old Bay St. Louis resident Taylor Corso, who plays an assistant stage manager named Jane.

"My favorite part about the show is that it has continuous action," the New Orleans native said. "It's never dull."

Corso said she has little in common with her quiet character.

"I'm almost nothing like Jane," she said. "I'm never shy around adults, and I talk a lot more."

Seventeen-year-old Brady Bordelon's role as the assistant stage manager is anything but quiet. Her naive character, Poppy, continuously bumps heads with the director.

"Poppy has this loud cry that's strangely Lucille Ball-esque," said the Pass Christian resident.

Bordelon, a Chalmette, La. native, said her favorite part of the play was Act Two, which allows the audience the opportunity to see the numerous mishaps backstage.

"I love all the backstage antics," she said.

Edward Duhon, a 29-year-old Abbeville, La. native, portrays the absent-minded actor Freddie, who gets a nose bleed at the first sight of violence.

This Bay St. Louis thespian's character also needs constant clarification and motivation. Fortunately for the real cast of "Noises Off," Duhon is completely competent.

"I learned how challenging acting can be," he said. "But this in no way diminishes the fun I had working on this play. I am very proud of the effort we all put in every aspect of this production."

Duhon said he enjoyed working with a "very talented and supportive" ensemble cast.

As part of this "talented" cast, Mindy Braland gives life to the "dumb but sweet" Brooke, who is completely oblivious to what's going on outside the play and who manages to lose her contact lens at the most inopportune times.

The 27-year-old Iowa native said she has little in common with her character.

"I'm not dumb," she said. "But, I can act a bit ditzzy sometimes."

In reality, this Bay St. Louis resident tends to remind the rest of us cast members where we are when we lose our places.

Fortunately for me, I'm paired with Braland throughout most of the show. So, I have her to lean on when I forget a line.

Also in my favor is the fact that I have a lot in common with my character, Garry, an actor who can't quite manage to completely verbalize his thoughts.

Don't let my writing fool you. I'm very inarticulate when it comes to speaking. Like my character, I fumble about with my sentences and interject "Do you know what I mean?" and "You know?" as often as possible.

Apparently, the director, Theresa Scardino, sensed this when she cast me for this role. Although little acting is required on my part, I have thoroughly enjoyed playing Garry and working with a group of talented performers.

Hopefully, my cast members and I don't make the same mistakes as our characters in the devastatingly hilarious "Noises Off."

Do you know what I mean?

At the time Gretal and I sailed together, however, there were about four to five pilings in each row. And each of the five rows of pilings was a smaller and smaller distance apart — the eyes of the needles.

The first row, or farthest out, was about 20 feet away from the second row. That second row was about 12 from the third, the third row about eight from the fourth, and the last spacing was so narrow that Gretal and I never tried to "thread it."

The idea of threading each needle was simple: go between two of the rows of pilings without touching the pilings. It was a little harder to actually do this and that was where the skill came in.

We would go a distance upwind of the pilings, preferably at as near a right angle to the rows as the wind allowed and then, catching the wind, shoot as fast as possible at the pilings. At the last minute of our approach to the row to be threaded, I would throw over the tiller and pull in the sail.

The boat would turn and for a moment the mast would be upright and we would hurl between the rows of pilings, carried along by sheer momentum.

The difficulty lay in the fact that whereas the boat would turn immediately, it still had momentum on in the original direction.

If we turned too close to the pilings, this momentum would cause us to hit the pilings on the downwind side. Since we would be going fairly fast, this hit could be rather hard.

Or if we did it too far from the pilings, the mast would start to heel over as the sail caught the wind, and the sails would rub against the barnacle-encrusted pilings.

We needed a good wind at the right angle to do this. But when conditions were right Gretal and I would start with the first row and thread each of the succeeding needles.

If we did it without touching any of the pilings, we would go back and tell Stella and she would say "oh my" and give us homemade ice cream and a dog biscuit.

One time, we had Stella's cousin and her family visiting. As a good host, I took her cousin's husband, Ronnie, out sailing with me and began showing him how to thread the needles.

He was a very pleasant person and, best of all, since he wasn't really a sailor, he was easily impressed by my skill. I, of course, took all his "wows" with poorly hidden pleasure. After all, Gretal never said anything when I did it with her and Stella's "oh my" never really sounded quite as sincere as I thought it should.

"Did you ever go through that last set?" Ronnie asked, looking back at the poles we had just threaded. We had pulled back to make another run and were a little way from the pilings. From where we were I couldn't see how narrow the gap in the last set was or I would not have said what I did.

"Never tried it, but I don't see why not. If you're game, lets do it!" And we shot for the pilings.

I should admit that the reason I had been doing so well up till then was not so much my skill, as that a strong wind was blowing at a perfect angle to the pilings. When we headed to the piling on this run, we were moving at a perfect speed and angle to thread.

"Now!" I shouted, pushing the tiller out from me. Ronnie pulled in the sail and we turned perfectly and the momentum hurled us toward what I suddenly realized was an awfully narrow gap!

We hit. We hit hard. We hit very hard.

I was hurled over the side, just missing the first pole. I surfaced, gasping and saw Ronnie a little way off, spitting water and looking at the boat.

It was an amazing sight. It was stuck between the pilings, bow down, stern up, the mast quivering like a bowstring. The aft end of the hull was actually out of the water — you could almost see the center-board.

Ronnie looked at the boat and then at me, obviously impressed. "That was fantastic, Paul. But can't that sort of do some hurt?"

I looked at the boat trying to figure how to get it free. "No. Not if you get off it first like we did."

For a really showy display, use it as a companion to the Mississippi Medallion Award-winning Bouquet Purple dianthus.

In addition to those flowers, you also can use Early Sunrise with Honey Bee Blue agastache, Victoria Blue salvia or Indigo Spires salvia, or Hameln Dwarf Fountain grass — all good perennials for Mississippi.

The All-America Selections Gold Medal winner Early Sunrise is superior, but there are also other good choices like Baby Sun, Sunray and Sunburst.

In addition to the Coreopsis grandiflora, consider the Coreopsis verticillata known as the thread-leaf coreopsis.

Moonbeam, the 1992 Perennial Plant of the Year, is still the most popular, but many horticulturists regard Zagreb as the best. Golden Showers produces the largest flowers. Try also the annual coreopsis C. tinctoria.

Once you start growing perennials you will get hooked. It will become an almost insatiable passion.

Winters like the one we've just endured will make you miserable with anticipation, yet winter will be a distant memory once the blooms of plants like the Early Sunrise start their bold display.

FACTS ABOUT THE BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

AS A THIEF IN THE NIGHT

THE HIGHLY TRAINED RANGERS-SCOUT OF MODERN WARFARE HAS NOTHING ON THE DELICIOUS SOLDIER WHO WAS ALSO TRAINED TO BE CRAFTY AND CLEVERLY BY STEALTH. EVALUATE HOW BEST TO SPY OUT THE LAND IN A SITUATION WHICH DEMANDS GREAT SKILL IN ORDER NOT TO BE DISCOVERED. THEY OPERATED MOSTLY AT NIGHT, HANGING TO OUTWIT THE KEEN-EARED SENTRY WHERE A CARELESS FOOTFALL MIGHT BETRAY THEIR PRESENCE AND RESULT IN THEIR IMMEDIATE DEFEAT! SMALL WONDER THIS KIND OF SOLDIER HAD TO OPERATE TO QUOTE JOB, (24:14), "AS A THIEF IN THE NIGHT!"

Reflections on life save our children from death

Our Mass of the resurrection long done, we were wrapping up our final prayers in the cemetery when a frankly unsavory-looking, 20-something young man pushed to the front of the crowd, haranguing us about his dead comrade: "I'm from the hood, and I'm one of his special friends," he began.

"I don't like what the funeral people did to my friend by taking his red rag out of his coffin. That wasn't right. They should not have done that."

To his great surprise, the young man was reassured that the funeral director had not removed anything from the coffin. Upon hearing this, he moved back and slid away as quickly as he had made the scene. An angry murmur arose among the crowd, focusing on the man's ugly disrespect for the family and the rest of the graveside mourners at prayer.

But the hottest complaints came as the people began to move toward their vehicles. "That scene in the church was a total disgrace!" one offered.

"Can you imagine having that red bandana spill its contents on the church floor, with that glass crack pipe bouncing all around? And God knows what the rest of that stuff was all wrapped up in that bandana!"

It suddenly hit me flush in the face that something was rotten in Denmark.

This was not the first time that I had a gang-related funeral with, as it turned out, a drug user who came up on the short end of the stick of a hit man. Now if grieving families would just let me know what has happened instead of living in denial. No doubt, they fear I will refuse burial if they tell the truth.

I learned only later that the undertaker had put gloves on the dead man in order to conceal the extreme discolorations and scars on hands used to cradling and fending off the heat of a crack pipe. Nor did I know the coffin pillow had been slit to sandwich his head, concealing awful bullet damage.

Instinct, intuition, the voice of experience, something kept whispering to me that this funeral was not what it seemed to be. The only natural thing about the man's death appeared to be that his heart stopped beating. Three prior gang-related funerals had clued me in on what tell-tale signs to look for.

Fortunately, this was not a destructive funeral such as one about 9 years ago when a gang of 10, dressed immaculately in 3-piece, white suits, with white shoes, did everything in unison during the Mass, playing to a lively congregation of no standing room at all. They were the picture of respect.

However, once Mass was over and they had filed out of the church, they moved swiftly through the choked streets and made a bee line to the cars preparing for the funeral caravan. Leaping up onto the hoods, then onto the roofs, they did ritual dances on the roofs of the lead car, a limousine and the hearse as we were lining up for the funeral cortege to the cemetery.

Count thousands of dollars of vehicular damage and far greater harm done to the psyches of a couple of thousand frightened people flooding the streets around the church. The same gang members who had been so docile and harmless in church reverted to their brazen, dangerous ways as soon as they got beyond the walls of the church and took to the streets.

Evidence says that the red bandana worn by the young protester in the cemetery, the same type buried with his murdered fellow gang member, indicates they belong to the Bloods, an exceedingly violent gang originating out of the Los Angeles area. Over the past 3 decades, the gang eased into much of the U.S. along with drug sales using airplanes and high technology.

Back in 1970, I had a rude introduction to their antics, being warned by relatives in Los Angeles not to wear a deerskin jacket which I had just purchased from Tijuana. "The Bloods or the Crips will take it away from you, and you'll be lucky if they don't take your life along with it!"

"How could they do this to a church?" is the refrain still heard about the red bandana caper at the coffin. "Don't they have any fear of God?"

And certainly they have no respect at all for the bereaved family members. But that is the way of drug dealers and of many users as well. That is the way of gang members who live with the cold-blooded Mafia mentality.

Whether out of ignorance or defiance, very many of our youths do not find acceptance, self-worth, meaning and security in a nuclear, single-parent or extended family. So they reach outside the traditional family to forge their own family through the sinister, outlaw, exciting bonds of a gang.

Needless to say, these are not Easter people fully intent on and living for the prospect of resurrection and eternal life. Au contraire, they are children of the culture of death, merchants of destruction from whom we must defend our little ones before they too become corrupted with this deadly culture.

Only a concerted, intense, persevering effort on the part of all God-fearing parents, guardians, teachers, counselors, preachers, judges, legislators and community organizers can destroy gangs and their magnetism. Together, only these extended family members can instill Godly values, self-worth, acceptance, belonging, meaning and joyful attitudes in our littlest ones.

The Word for the Week

God's family life

Dennis J. Flannery, Box 303, St. Louis, MO 63166

As Mother's Day comes once again, our thoughts turn toward home and the family.

But sadly, one of the greatest problems in our society today is the breakdown of the family. There are many contributing factors.

One of them is the view that the Bible is an archaic book which is irrelevant for today's complex problems. For example, we are told that the Bible's view of the family is hopelessly outdated. We are told that those who wrote about the family in the Bible were so influenced by their culture that what they have to say means nothing for today.

Suppose I show you that what the Bible says about the family is not cultural at all. Rather, it is a corrective to the devastating problem of sin. Would that make a difference? It should!

You see, when Adam and Eve sinned against God, they suffered certain consequences. God put the results of sin this way. He said to Eve, "Your desire shall be for your husband, and he shall rule over you" (Genesis 3:16).

Here God was telling Adam and Eve about the devastating consequences of sin in their relationship. Eve would want to dominate Adam. Adam would respond by exercising tyrannical rule over Eve.

It's a picture which is repeated time after time in marriages. Interestingly enough, the very same words are used about sins desire to dominate us. Listen, "Sin is crouching at the door; and its desire is for you, but you must master it" (Genesis 4:7).

Now, when Paul comes along and says, "Wives be subject to your own husbands" (Ephesians 5:22), he is trying to correct a problem that results from sin. And when he says, "Husbands, love your wives" (Ephesians 5:25), he is speaking to a problem that results from sin.

Scripture Says . . .

By Ed Young

It's almost impossible to go a week without someone having something unfavorable to say about this church or that denomination. The remarks vary from the church doctrine too the dislike of the Priest or minister. Even the worship music is scrutinized. The music is either too dull or to hippified.

What some people must realize is the church is trying to point people to God. The whole purpose is to bring people to a place where they get to know God. Nothing is perfect because people aren't perfect.

These men and women, if they are called of God, then they will have apart in influencing us. We can be as spiritual as we want to be. We can be Committed to God to such a degree that He would respond to us as we seek Him. "Draw near to God and He will draw near to you."

So churches and their leaders try to point people to Jesus. What more can they do, but try?

The fact of the matter is it comes down to a personal relationship with Jesus. Jesus desires his people to enjoy getting to know Him. When we read the gospels, they tell us about the character He has. It tells us how concerned He is for His flock. It tells us about His attributes. His love for us. The character and attributes of Jesus are the same as our Heavenly Father.

Jesus says: to know me is to know the Father. John 1: 1 & 2.

New Orleans: Not just for grown ups any longer

BY JAMES R. PONDER

Patrick had just turned seven when we decided to spend several days in New Orleans. Our visits to the Big Easy usually meant driving there and back in the same day. But this was different, a family vacation just an hour from home. And it turned out to be a blast!

First stop was the Chateau Sonesta Hotel located at 800 Iberville Street. You just can not find a better location, everything is within walking distance. The hotel takes up the whole block, Bourbon Street on the south, Canal to the west, Iberville and Dauphine.

The Chateau Sonesta is a destination unto itself with a long, colorful history. The building was constructed in 1849 by Daniel Henry Holmes and for 140 years was known to locals and visitors alike as the D.H. Holmes Department Store.

When the store closed in 1989, the property was donated to the city of New Orleans which created the Canal Street Development Corporation to rescue the historic pre-Civil War landmark.

Sonesta International Hotels Incorporated formed a public/private partnership with the city to preserve and adapt the building into a really unique hotel.

The interior was completely renovated and the exterior was restored to its 1913 facade. Many special reminders of the structures' past have been incorporated into the new hotel.

The alabaster pillars from the original D.H. Holmes soda fountain adorn the bar in the Clock Bar. The cypress exposed beams in the Atrium Courtyard date back to 1849. The iron columns and marble accents in the floor of the lobby also date back to the original building.

And the famous "clock", which was a favorite meeting place for generations of New Orleanians, was returned to the hotel and hangs in its original location on Canal Street.

The Chateau Sonesta is a great start for any trip to New Orleans and is truly a luxury hotel.

Each of its 250-rooms features 12-foot ceilings and offers great views of one of three tropical courtyards, including a beautifully landscaped pool patio, and the city's world famous French Quarter. It also has rooms with balconies overlooking Bourbon Street. For more information, call 504-586-0800.

After a good night's sleep, we were ready to see the sights which a seven year old sort of in-charge.

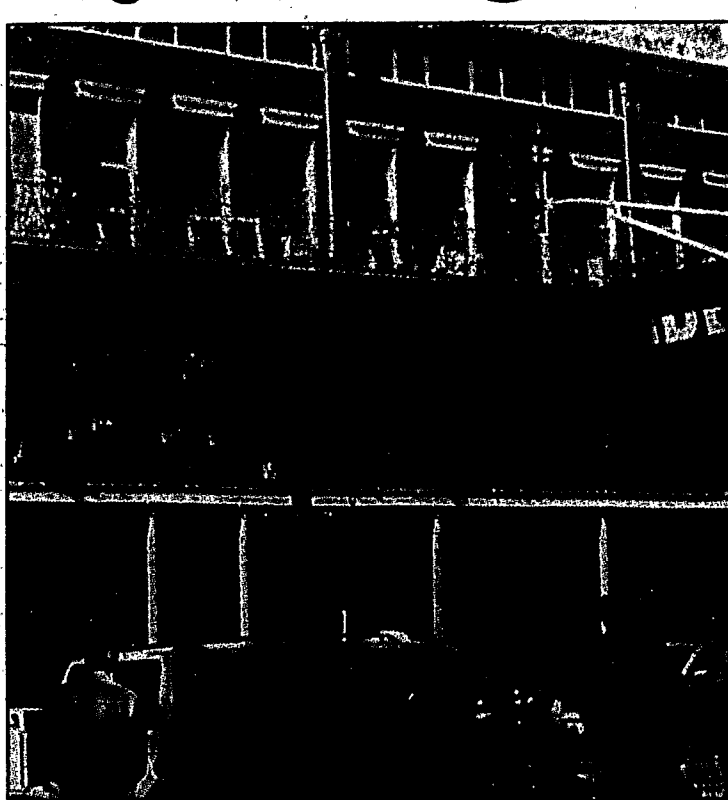

A stroll through Jackson Square led us over to where all the mules and carriages were lined-up, waiting for their first passengers of the morning. The ride and tour through the French Quarter turned out to be a lot more fun than I had imagined. The driver was a real character, with a story for everything in sight. He could even make the mule "talk", much to Patrick's delight. And that old mule might have been born at night, but it wasn't last night, cause it was pretty much on its own, with the driver spending most of his time talking and looking back at us.

Next stop, the Audubon Aquarium of the Americas. And folks, this is a world-class aquarium! Its 132,000-gallon Caribbean Reef features a 30-foot long acrylic tunnel that let Patrick get eye-to-eye with hundreds of brightly colored Caribbean fish.

Then he found the touchpools. Patrick was able to reach into the water and touch a baby shark, starfish, urchins and other sea creatures.

There are many exhibits at the aquarium, but the biggest is the 400,000-gallon Gulf of Mexico. It features a one-fourth size replica of an offshore oilrig. Huge sharks slowly glide around it. Schools of fish move items from the second world war. There are airplanes, landing craft, weapons, uniforms, etc. The war is brought to life through recreations of major battles, short videos, audios and interactive exhibits, including; the Louisiana Memorial Pavilion, War Clouds, America Goes to War, Preparing for the Invasion, Air and Sea Assault, D-Day: The Beaches, Victory in Europe, Pacific Wing, etc. It also houses important materials for research.

The museum was dedicated on June 6, 2002, by the late World War II historian and museum founder, and former Bay St. Louis resident, Stephen E. Ambrose. For more information, call 504-527-6012.

Enough for the first day. It's back to the Chateau Sonesta for another relaxing evening. A quick dip in the pool to cool off and then dinner at Brennan's Red Fish Grill, which is connected to the hotel. Later, a tired and happy Patrick played video games in the room while mom and dad enjoyed an after dinner drink right outside the open door on the pool area courtyard. Priceless.

Day two started with a walk to Cafe du Monde and their world famous beignets. Then a leisurely visit to the French Market, then back to docks in front of the Aquarium of the Americas to board the riverboat John James Audubon for a cruise up to the Audubon Zoo.

The view of New Orleans skyline was breath taking from the river as we circled out from the docks. We enjoyed snacks and drinks as ocean-going vessels motored past as we made our way up river to the zoo. For information on the boat, call 504-586-8777.

The Audubon Zoo is huge. Be prepared to do some walking. The zoo covers some 58 acres and houses over 1500 animals.

Jaguar Jungle was Patrick's first choice. At the entrance is a winding pathway, meandering over a stream, through archways, past ancient temples and ruins to a dig site where Patrick searched for artifacts and bones. He and other young archeologists had a blast.

Realistic looking Mayan stone carvings are around every turn in this rainforest setting. And in the center stands Jaguar Plaza, featuring two magnificent jaguars. Other jungle creatures are located throughout the exhibit.

Then it was on to the Louisiana Swamp. This natural looking area recreates life on the bayou, Cajun style. We took a journey back to a 1930's swamp settlement, complete with cypress trees and Spanish moss, past a trapper's shack, alligators and other swamp creatures.

White tigers, Komodo dragons, elephants, monkeys, sea loins, the list goes on and on. The animals are grouped into geographical regions, such as the African Savanna, Asian Domain, World of Primates, etc. There's also an area where youngsters can pet the animals.

The zoo's newest attraction is the Treehouse at Monkey Hill. This is a kid's dream come true. This five-level structure stands 20 feet tall, is build sort of like a fort and gives them a great look-out from the highest point in the zoo. Don't worry kids, there's still plenty of room for you to "roll" down Monkey Hill, a zoo tradition for decades.

And get this parents, the smart people at Audubon have created a tree-covered patio seating area where you can cool your heels while watching the kids blow off a little steam!

And if you get too tired of walking, you can always hop onboard the Mombassa train. The zoo is an all day adventure.

For the trip back to the hotel, we took a ride on the open-windowed St. Charles Avenue streetcar. We rode past stately antebellum homes, Tulane and Loyola Universities and many other points of interest along the oak tree lined boulevard.

Day three, and final day of our trip, included a visit to Blaine Kern's Mardi Gras World. Here, you get a behind-the-scenes tour of how those giant Mardi Gras floats are created. Included is a taste of king cake and a costume area where everyone gets to play dress-up. For more info, call 504-361-7821.

Patrick concluded his visit, returning to Jackson

Square with a tour through the Cabildo and the Presbytere, and then, a little shopping with mom in the Jackson Brewery complex.

About an hour later we were home, unpacking, and listening to Patrick telling the neighborhood kids about his excellent adventures.

Enrique Murciano

Checking in with Enrique Murciano

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

On CBS' Thursday drama "Without a Trace," Enrique Murciano plays Danny Taylor, a serious-minded, dapper FBI agent working for a New York-based squad that seeks missing persons.

Off the set, though, Murciano is hardly a buttoned-down suit-and-tie guy.

"I'm always in leisure wear when I have to go to work. I get there at such early hours that the easiest thing for me to do is literally step right out of bed into my slippers and drive to work.

"With the suit and the hair and the makeup, the more time I can spend in comfortable clothing, I do."

And Murciano is not especially serious, either. "Danny's nothing like me. I'm a goofball in real life. I love to laugh all the time. I don't think Danny's that way.

"He's really struggling with who he is."

Although "Without a Trace" is set in Gotham, it films mostly in Los Angeles, so Murciano gets to show off some of his personal collection of sunglasses.

"I wear different ones," he says. "I wear a pair of Blinds on the show, which I'm wearing right now. I also wear a pair of vintage Serengeti glasses from the '80s."

Off-camera, along with the aforementioned leisure wear and sunglasses, Murciano's other favorite fashion accessory is his motorcycle.

"As a kid, I was never a sports fan, never on a team, never played basketball or football. I was about the motorcycles and the go-carts and the cars, when I was old enough to drive."

"I live, eat and breathe motorcycles and cars."

Birthplace: Miami

Birthdate: July 9 (making him a Cancer)

Guy-bonding moment: While playing a U.S. soldier under fire in Somalia in "Black Hawk Down," Murciano got to spend time with co-star Ewan McGregor. "He's an awesome actor, and he loves motorcycles, which earns him points with me. He's a guy's guy."

Speaking of motorcycles: "I have an enormous bike. It's an Indian. It's got a vintage frame and a vintage body, but the engine is an F&S engine. The producers don't know that I ride motorcycles, but they may know now."

ABC suggests more 'Home Improvement' with reunion

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Even if something seems complete, there's usually reason to tool with it some more.

So it is with "Home Improvement," the ABC sitcom that ran from 1991 to 1999. Though some original cast members are missing, the "Tool Time" gang - Tim Allen, Richard Karn and Debbie Dunning - gathers again for "Tim Allen Presents: A User's Guide to Home Improvement," an ABC special airing Sunday, May 4 (and repeating May 17).

Returning cast members appear both in and out of character, with Tim Taylor and Al Borland (played by Allen and Karn) presiding over another edition of their show-within-the-show, with assistance again provided by alluring "Tool Time Girl" Heidi (Dunning).

The result is an hourlong digest of "Home Improvement" clips, bloopers and remembrances. Earl Hindman, alias the fictional Tim's wise and mostly unseen neighbor Wilson, also is on hand; co-stars Patricia Richardson, Jonathan Taylor Thomas, Zachery Ty Bryan and Taran Noah Smith are seen in the flashbacks.

"One of the questions people ask me a lot is, 'Are you guys going to do a reunion show?'" Karn says, "and it's been asked of Tim a lot, too. It's probably been on his mind for a long time, just because he's kept being reminded of it. The way it worked out, though, this is more of a 'Tool Time' reunion. In fact, most people come up to me and say they loved my show 'Tool Time.' They don't even call it 'Home Improvement.'"

The latest host of the game show "Family Feud," Karn was especially pleased to return to the "Home Improvement" set because "we had 95 percent of the original crew back. We had the same camera guys, the hair and makeup people were all the same, and we even had our old director (Andy Cadiff). It was just really fun to see everybody, and we fell right back into our old, comfortable routine. Even after four years, it felt more like going back after only a two-week hiatus."

Richard Karn

Richard Karn on ABC's "Tim Allen Presents: A User's Guide to Home Improvement" Sunday, May 4, did not act in the 1950s and '60s. But when the cast walked on stage, "There was an immediate standing

Goran Visnjic, resident 'ER' hunk, helps resuscitate show

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

As helicopters buzz the Empire State Building and the National Guard patrols on a frigid day in New York, a veteran of a barely understood war remains unfazed about the threat of terrorism.

"I don't give a damn," says Goran Visnjic, easing his muscular 6-foot, 4-inch frame into an easy chair in the lounge of a midtown hotel. "What can you do? If I can do something, I would do something. Life has to go on. It's crazy to think apocalyptic thoughts when you can't do anything about it. My mother used to say, 'A brick can fall off a house and kill you.' It's part of life."

Visnjic takes a drag on a Marlboro Light; his dark green eyes look far off for a moment. There is a gravitas about this man, a sense of being far older than his 30 years.

This serious core comes across in his portrayal of Dr. Luka Kovac on NBC's "ER," which airs its 200th episode, "When Night Meets Day," on Thursday, May 8. A dramatic device for the episode is a split-screen showing the night- and day-shift doctors at work.

The medical drama sometimes veered off course in past seasons, but rebounded this year in part because of Visnjic's character. "This year, it gets more interesting for me and Luka than the previous three years," Visnjic says. This season, Luka has no patience for patients with frivolous cases. He drinks too much, has casual sex with a patient's mother and perpetually infuriates his boss, Dr. Kerry Weaver (Laura Innes).

Off screen, however, Innes is not immune to his charms. "I think the thing people don't really know about him from seeing him on the show, where he's so handsome and groovy, is that he's very silly and self-effacing," she says. "And he has this kind of goofy quality in real life that's so incredibly charming."

Luka, however, is less than charming as he struggles with a wretched past that includes his wife and children perishing in the war in Croatia. That is the war Visnjic fought in as an 18-year-old, and which he does not discuss now, saying so few people understand what happened. "What's important is now everything is great," Visnjic says. "It is a great tourist spot."

With the exception of the war, Visnjic talks freely, approaching conversation as an art. Wearing a thick black turtleneck, black jeans and black boots, he easily passes for a brooding Greenwich Village artist. Visnjic, however, is not posing, though he knows a bit about melancholy. After his stint as a paratrooper, he spent six summers playing Hamlet in Croatia.

"When I was shooting (the 1997 film) 'Welcome to Sarajevo,' I was doing 'Hamlet' at the same time," he says. "We played it in a fortress from the 15th century - on a hill. It was 250 miles (from the film shoot) and there was no highway. I took a cab."

He smiles as he recalls a struggling actor paying hundreds of dollars for taxis and the craziness of simultaneously playing different men from different centuries. It was all in pursuit of the acting career he began at 9, when he played the wolf in an original rendition of "Little Red Riding Hood."

Each summer, his hometown theater hosts a festival for children. Visnjic was so young when he started going that he cannot remember his first time. He does, however, happily recall playing backstage and climbing ropes. "It was a big playground," he says. "It was great fun to be there. And the theater was great. The Goran Visnjic became interested in theater as a child in Sibenik, on the Adriatic coast. The character he plays on NBC's Thursday drama "ER," Dr. Luka Kovac, also is Croatian.

attic had costumes and swords. And we did 'Midsummer Night's Dream' for kids."

Another passion was kindled as a youngster - driving big vehicles. Visnjic says he drove as soon as he could reach the pedals. At 14, he drove his grandfather's tractor from the farm to town; errands that should have taken a few minutes became excursions.

Today, Visnjic enjoys four-wheel driving. He recently drove his wife, artist Ivana Vrdoljak and his pug, Bugsy, to Colorado, and he has plans to drive cross-country.

Though he enjoys the United States, he visits his family and beloved homeland as often as he can. He is working on a film for his father-in-law, a director, and Visnjic seems resigned to splitting time between Los Angeles and his hometown of Sibenik, a small city on the Adriatic.

Q A few years before "Becker," Shawnee Smith starred in a sitcom. What was it? -Jane, Fair Oaks, Ind.

As I write this, the "District" creative team is working on a special episode in tribute to Thigpen and her very popular character, Ella Farmer. I wasn't fortunate enough to know this extraordinary actress personally, but I did chat with her at a few industry parties and always found her unfailingly charming, smart, funny, warm and completely down to earth. Her untimely death is a real loss.

Q What happened to the "weather nun" on "Good Morning, Miami"? She was very funny, but seems to have disappeared. -Kathy in Michigan.

A Brooke Dillman was indeed very funny as Sister Brenda, but the character became increasingly irrelevant as the sitcom shifted focus from the morning show to the romantic entanglements of Jake, Penny, Dylan and Gavin. In the context of the series, Sister Brenda left the morning show to experience more of the world.

You may not have noticed, but Tessie Santiago, another supporting player and Gavin's former co-host, likewise was written out earlier in the season to allow Suzanne Pleshette's character to interact more with the other players. Such changes are common in the first season of a new series, and the executive producers had nothing but praise for Dillman's and Santiago's work.

Martinez keeps priorities clear as he takes on Hollywood fare

By John Crook
© Zap2it

First, Juliette Binoche looked up to his "Horseman on the Roof." Next, he seduced Diane Lane into being "Unfaithful" to screen hubby Richard Gere.

Now, rising French star Olivier Martinez is triggering a major heat wave during "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone" in a new Showtime adaptation of a Tennessee Williams novella premiering Sunday, May 4.

The same material was filmed previously in 1961 with Vivien Leigh and Warren Beatty, but the new Showtime teleplay by Martin Sherman ("Bent") sets this torrid tale of an aging American widow (Helen Mirren) and a volatile young Italian gigolo (Martinez) in its proper post-WWII social and historical context.

Casting Martinez, who appears far younger than his 37 years, in the role of Paolo didn't require a lot of imagination, says the TV movie's director, Robert Allan Ackerman.

"First off, Olivier certainly looks the part," he laughs. "Paolo is supposed to be the most beautiful boy in Rome, and that could easily be a description of Olivier. But Martin Sherman's script gave the character far more complexity than even Williams gave him in the novel, approaching Paolo from a historical and social perspective instead of just a 'La Dolce Vita' gigolo. And Olivier is a wonderful actor with the charm, sensuality and intelligence to make Paolo as complex as one might hope."

Martinez relished the challenge of exploring the ambiguous depths of a Tennessee Williams character.

"Paolo wasn't especially easy for me to understand at first, because he is so far from my own personality, but that's what is interesting about acting and playing different characters," the actor says, his heavy French accent belying a very strong English vocabulary. "It's just all about finding the key to each one."

"What is interesting about Paolo is the paradox inside him. He is very proud, pretends to be from a very important family - a count, or something like that - but maybe it's not that at all. Maybe it's just like a little child who dreams - and I thought of Paolo as a big dreamer."

"He doesn't want to face reality, because reality is too harsh. He goes through his life in his own kind of fantasy world, refusing to see himself in any context other than a very important man in very important situations. That's what makes him dangerous, and that's why it was so interesting to play him, because I am not at all like that. I'm very rational and concrete."

Indeed, while Paolo is often arrogant and aloof, Martinez himself seems relaxed and cordial, even unexpectedly funny, during a recent stay in Los Angeles.

"Paolo is a gigolo, a prostitute, but he can't, won't, allow himself to see that," he says. "But then there's the fact that I am not even able to be naked in a movie, so you can imagine how hard it would be for me to be a gigolo!"

Martinez is referring to a striking paradox in his own emerging status as an international sex symbol: He firmly refuses to do nude scenes ("Too distracting," he explains).

That's just one example of how this erstwhile boxer from a middle-class family has been calling his own shots since he accompanied a friend to auditions and more or less stumbled into a new career. Martinez loves acting, he says, but not enough to compromise his principles.

"I take my job very seriously, and I try to be good, because I have this kind of professional conscience inside of me, because I am being paid to do this work," he explains. "But if I were, say, a sportsman, I think I would take the same angle on my profession. Before everything else, it's a game and I want to play as much as I can, and it would be nice to win a title some time, but that isn't my main concern."

He won a 1994 Cesar award (the French equivalent of an Oscar) as most promising actor for a role with Marcello Mastroianni in "1, 2, 3, Soleil," which immediately preceded "The Horseman on the Roof," a romantic French epic in which he played a young Italian soldier-in-exile trying to escort a reckless countess (Binoche) through a horrifying cholera epidemic during the Napoleonic War.

His dashing performance captured the attention of critics in the United States, where he was dubbed "the French Brad Pitt," a ridiculous handle he wears with good humor.

"I thought that was quite funny, but I understood why they did that for American audiences, because they didn't know my work or who I was, so saying, 'Oh, it's kind of a Brad Pitt character, but in France' was maybe the best they could do," Martinez says. "It's certainly not true that I am 'a French Brad Pitt' - I like him very much as an actor, by the way - but I have nothing to do with him. People who really know me and my work know it isn't true."

"Horseman" was followed by Julian Schnabel's English-language "Before

Olivier Martinez, who stars in Showtime's "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone" on Sunday, has emerged as a major international star while playing by his own rules.

Night Falls," then "Unfaithful" opposite the Oscar-nominated Lane. Martinez recently finished a featured role in "S.W.A.T.," his first big-budget Hollywood movie set for release this summer, but don't think you are seeing the birth of a new action star.

"I could never be the next Sylvester Stallone - my arms are not big enough!" he protests. "No, no, it's just very interesting to go from a very intimate, artistic movie like 'Mrs. Stone' to an action movie like 'S.W.A.T.' If you're paying attention, you notice that in that movie I am surrounded by actors like Samuel L. Jackson and Colin Farrell, plus a director named Clark Johnson ("Homicide: Life on the Street"), whom I find very interesting."

"I certainly wasn't sure about the whole idea of doing an action film in America, because I never had done one before, but when I met Clark Johnson, I thought, 'I really want to work with this guy.' I play a very bad killer guy in this movie, which is what I haven't done before, and that's very interesting. But tomorrow, if you say to me, 'All right, now we do a low-budget film about a dancer from Russia,' I will do it if it seems interesting to me."

Dick Van Dyke and Mary Tyler Moore reunite on PBS

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

TV legends Dick Van Dyke and Mary Tyler Moore are back together, but not like viewers might expect.

The emotions and language are more raw when the actors, who co-starred in the 1960s series "The Dick Van Dyke Show," reunite in "The Gin Game," D.L. Coburn's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, on "PBS Hollywood Presents" Sunday, May 4 (check local listings). Moore plays Fonsia, a newcomer to a nursing home where Weller (Van Dyke) is a longtime resident. They get to know each other by playing gin rummy, and as their competition intensifies, so do their verbal exchanges.

Van Dyke initiated the idea of bringing "The Gin Game" to television with himself and Moore. "I had always enjoyed the play," he explains, "mainly because I saw Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy do it. Normally, I don't believe in doing something over once it's been done right, but I always felt Mary and I could put a little different spin on this. I wouldn't have attempted it with anybody else, because we really support each other. I think it worked out pretty well. The funny thing was that, so many years since we'd last acted together, we fell right back into it. It was like we'd worked together yesterday."

However, Van Dyke cautions, "This isn't 'The Dick Van Dyke Show' couple) Rob and Laura, that's for sure. My primary worry is that the guy I play swears like a longshoreman, and no one has ever heard me say those kinds of things on television before. Because of my reputation, I'm afraid people will assume 'The Gin Game' is family entertainment, so I want to warn them that it's not."

Though they play people in their twilight years in "The Gin Game," Moore says she and Van Dyke didn't alter their acting approaches all that drastically. "Dick was as spry as he always has been," she says, "but within reason, because he is playing an older chap. You can see clearly that his character loves to dance and probably did a lot of it in his youth. There is a moment where Fonsia talks Weller into dancing with her, and they engage in a waltz that I think is quite effective."

They also engage in a lot of on-camera card playing. Van Dyke says mastering gin was "my hardest job, just learning how to shuffle and deal.

I did it every night for a couple of weeks and also between shots." Moore is more of a veteran at cards, but she adds, "Trying to remember the dialogue and when to pick up and put down the cards was a hugely impressive task. I would rehearse at my hotel, and my assistant would go through the whole thing with me."

"We even went through the screaming matches the characters have with each other toward the end. I had brought my little schnauzer with me, and she would get so afraid, she would run and hide. Now, when my husband and I pull out our card deck at home, she does the same thing!"

It won't be long until Van Dyke and Moore again work together if writer-producer Carl Reiner's plans for a "The Dick Van Dyke Show" update come to fruition. First announced at the recent TV Land Awards, the project is moving along, Van Dyke reports. "Carl keeps calling me and saying, 'I'm having such fun with this! He has this idea he keeps battling away at on his computer, and if he thinks it's all right, I think it's all right. He says he started out thinking it would be a half-hour, but it's looking more like an hour now.'"

Former "Dick Van Dyke Show" co-stars Mary Tyler Moore and Dick Van Dyke reunite Sunday (check local listings) in the "PBS Hollywood Presents" presentation of "The Gin Game," a Pulitzer Prize-winning play about two nursing-home residents.

'Rome Is Burning' - and talking smack - on ESPN

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

This week, ESPN reaches into its past to keep pace with what appears to be the future of sports broadcasting.

"Rome Is Burning," a weekly live, hourlong opinion and interview show that premieres Tuesday, May 6, reintroduces tell-it-like-it-is radio and TV host Jim Rome to the cable channel he left in 1994 for Fox Sports Net and the very successful "The Last Word."

Sports talk is big at the moment, and the popularity of national radio shows hosted by Rome, Dan Patrick and Tony Kornheiser seems to indicate a limitless demand for such fare. ESPN has already made two successful forays into the genre with the daily TV shows "Around the Horn" and "Pardon the Interruption," the latter co-hosted by Kornheiser.

Now comes Rome with a weekly series that promises to be much in the same vein as "The Last Word": interviews with sports newsmakers, spirited debate and a frank, often confrontational style that has earned him the nickname "The King of Smack."

According to Mark Shapiro, ESPN executive vice president of programming and production, the decision to bring Rome back was a no-brainer - for both parties. "I think our company is in tune with the following and the popularity with regard to his radio show," Shapiro says. "So we really have been brainstorming this for a long time. And the thinking was that, at some point, Jim would come full circle and come back to ESPN. He was on the radar before 'Pardon the Interruption.' At the time, he was in the middle of a five-year contract and we kind of put it on the back burner and figured that the minute he's out of that, we'll bring him back.

"I think in the back of Jim's mind, he had always figured as soon as the time was right, he'd make his way back to ESPN as well. And quite frankly, this fits in more with his schedule. I mean, radio is his priority and it's very difficult to do a daily 3- to 4-hour radio show and then, on the back end, a daily one-hour television show. So he was looking for something once a week. We had something that was open for about 30 weeks a year. It gives him consistency. It certainly gives him a platform. It certainly gives him exposure. And at the same time, there are very few talents out there, especially in the sports world, that are so polarizing and cut through as hard and as deep as Jim Rome does. Love him or hate him, he's magnetic."

Few could argue that point, especially Jim Everett, the former NFL quarterback with whom Rome had an infamous confrontation in 1994. Then the host of the ESPN2 call-in show "Talk2," Rome questioned Everett's manhood by repeatedly calling him "Chris," a reference to former female tennis star Chris Evert. The 6-foot-5-inch Everett responded physically.

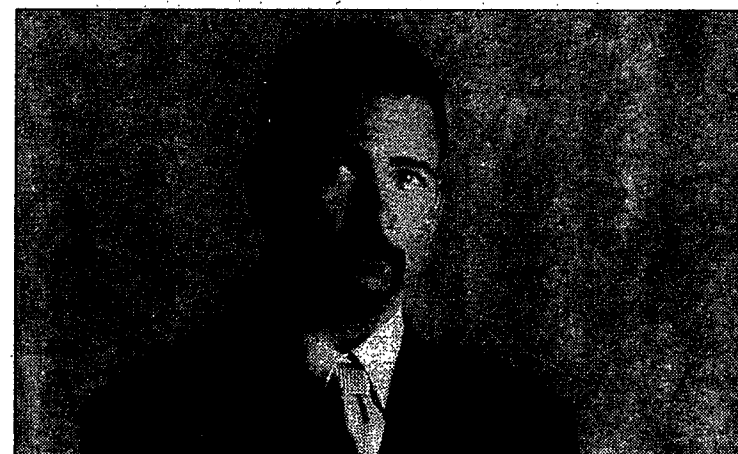

Some have called the situation a set-up, but Shapiro, the producer of "Talk2" at the time, dispels that notion. "Jim just misjudged the situation," he says. "I credit Jim for telling Everett days beforehand, 'Look, I can't have you come on the show because if I do, I'm going to have to call you 'Chrissy.' Because I've been calling you 'Chrissy' for years on the radio program out here in L.A.' And that's something Jim prides himself on. Jim's pretty honest, up front and in your face.

"Jim Everett, to his credit, said 'Look, that's fine, but then we're going to talk about why people are branding me, why I have that moniker.' And the problem was Jim misread the situation. He called him 'Chrissy'; he made his point. You say it once, you say it twice. But Jim pressed it. And then when Everett challenged him, Rome's up for any challenge and Rome struck back, and then that blow was one too many."

Shapiro, however, doesn't hold Rome blameless. "Calling it to his face was a cheap shot anyway," he says. "But at the same time, Jim wanted to be true to his following. And certainly, I'm sure if he soft-pedaled or not broached the subject or the nickname on television, I'm sure his radio fans would have had him for lunch the next day."

Despite the incident, Shapiro notes that Rome is popular among the athletes he covers. "Some athletes are turned on by that open, honest, direct, straightforward approach. Jim's edge appeals to them," he says. "At the same time, a lot of athletes are very - their comments are canned and they know that going on with Jim Rome, they won't survive, because you can't have canned quips and canned comments when being interviewed by Jim Rome."

"Seattle Mariners at Chicago White Sox" Sunday, May 4 (ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): The Seattle Mariners didn't have to give up any players to get Randy Winn in the offseason, just their manager. The 28-year-old outfielder was the compensation Tampa Bay surrendered to get Lou Piniella, who wanted out of his contract. Winn's all-around skills - and youthful presence - are already appreciated on an otherwise veteran Mariners team, which closes a three-game set tonight against Magglio Ordonez and the Chicago White Sox.

"Legendary Nights" Wednesday, May 7 (HBO, 10 p.m. ET): Only in boxing can one man dominate another and lose. That's the head-scratching saga of former heavyweight champ Riddick Bowe and Polish puncher Andrew Golota, recounted in this new "Legendary Nights" installment. The combatants met twice in 1996, with Golota on his way to victory each time until low blows disqualified him in both bouts. A post-fight ruckus following their first encounter erupted into a full-scale brawl in Madison Square Garden.

"San Francisco Giants at Atlanta Braves" Friday, May 9 (TBS, 7:30 p.m. ET): Getting within eight outs of a World Series title didn't turn the San Francisco Giants complacent. They made plenty of changes in the offseason - including importing Ray Durham and Edgardo Alfonzo - and are excelling again. The Giants began the season 10-1 for the fourth time in their history and first since moving to San Francisco 45 years ago. In fact, since the '97 season, the boys from the Bay area have the third-best record in baseball.

KAPOW! Superhero Science

Superman flies and makes use of X-ray vision, the Flash runs at amazing speeds, and Spider-Man shoots webs from his wrists that let him swing his way across a city. Such remarkable powers may seem like inventions of pure fiction, but some actually have roots in real science. This new special compares traits of popular superhero characters to true examples of the same qualities — helped along by technology in many cases.

Emmy nod humbles Chad Brannon of 'GH'

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

Chad Brannon was so certain his role on the daytime drama "General Hospital" would last only the planned six weeks, he kept his job at a sporting goods store while he taped his scenes as Zander Smith on the show.

"I couldn't be arrogant or stupid enough to think that I would be a star with just a six-week run on the show," the actor laughs. "I mean, you've still got to pay the bills."

Three years later, Brannon still is going strong on "GH." He's ecstatic and simultaneously humbled by the fact that he recently was nominated for a Daytime Emmy.

"I called my mom first and then my girlfriend," Brannon says about the morning he learned of the honor. "I still have a hard time believing any of this is happening. I'm enjoying every minute."

While the nomination is great, Brannon isn't resting on his laurels. He has a front-burner story line that is really heating up. The actor is excited to have Zander's love interest, Emily (Natalia Livingston), return to the show, and he can't wait to get to work every morning.

"For Zander, having Emily back makes his life complete," Brannon says. "She is everything to him. I know she is keeping something major from him. There is something going on in her eyes, but she's there and that means so much to him."

In other news: No one saw it coming. Roger Howarth (ex-Todd Manning, "One Life to Live") has joined the cast of "As the World Turns."

Many daytime fans thought when the actor left "OLTL" that he was headed back to prime-time television.

"We are thrilled to have an actor of Roger's caliber join our cast," executive producer Christopher Goutman says. "His intensity and humor bring a whole new dynamic to Oakdale, and where he goes, fireworks are sure to follow."

At press time, Procter & Gamble Productions, which produces "ATWT," had no information on the character Howarth would play or when he would debut.

That '70s Show

Fez (Wilmer Valderrama) ends up in much more trouble than he counted on in the new episode "The Immigrant Song." Police officers think Fez also is responsible and he faces possible deportation. Seth Green ("Buffy the Vampire Slayer," "Austin Powers") guest stars.

Dawson's Creek

"Joey Potter and Capeside Redemption," the show's next-to-last episode, finds Pacey (Joshua Jackson) trying to get Capeside residents to contribute enough money to help Dawson (James Van Der Beek) finish his movie. Jen, Jack and Grams (Michelle Williams, Kerr Smith, Mary Beth Peil) head for New York.

7 p.m. on 19-PBS

Great Performances

During its three-decade history, this recurring series has offered a wide array of the performing arts, encompassing everything from classical music and jazz to ballet and Broadway productions. The program's new "30th Anniversary: A Celebration in Song" compiles excerpts from some of the most memorable installments to date. Featured performers include Julie Andrews, Andrea Bocelli, Celine Dion, Liza Minnelli, Matthew Broderick and Nathan Lane.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

The Bernie Mac Show

Bernie's (Bernie Mac) parenting qualities are questioned by his sister (guest star Niecy Nash) in the new episode "The Other Sister." She quickly establishes her own way of handling her nieces and nephew during a visit, much to Bernie's dismay. Immediately following is another new episode, "Meet the Grandparents," in which Bernie faces a similar situation with his in-laws (guest stars Steven Williams and Janet Hubert).

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Angel

Ending the show's fourth season, the new episode "Home" gives Angel (David Boreanaz) an opportunity he never anticipated. Angel also tries to find and help Connor (Vincent Kartheiser), who has been left without direction, literally and spiritually.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

The West Wing

With suspected terrorists at large and the United States at a heightened state of alert, the president (Martin Sheen) debates how to address daughter Zoey's (Elisabeth Moss) death.

graduating class in the new episode "Commencement." Zoey is assigned a new Secret Service agent (guest star Taye Diggs, "Chicago"). C.J. (Allison Janney) tries to convince reporter Danny (guest star Timothy Busfield) not to proceed with a certain story.

The Twilight Zone

Gil Bellows continued to appear on "Ally McBeal" even after his character, Billy, had died. He's in a similar situation as he guest stars in the new episode "Homecoming," which casts him as a slain soldier still determined to patch things up with his son (Penn Badgley, "Do Over"). The hour's second story, "The Executions of Grady Finch," focuses on a death-row convict (Jeremy Sisto, "Six Feet Under").

8:30 p.m. on 19-PBS

Hitler's Victory

If World War II had resulted in another outcome, the world likely would be an extremely different place today. This new 90-minute special hypothesizes what a triumph by the Nazis could have meant, making use of the 1940 Nazi propaganda film "The Invasion of England" and computer imagery. Also considered are resistance plans, which had been hatched by British officials for potential use against Nazi troops.

9 p.m. on HBO

Legendary Nights

Only in boxing can one man dominate another and lose. That's the head-scratching saga of former heavyweight champ Riddick Bowe and Polish puncher Andrew Golota, recounted in this new "Legendary Nights" installment. The combatants met twice in 1996, with Golota on his way to victory each time until low blows disqualified him in both bouts. A post-fight ruckus following their first encounter erupted into a full-scale brawl in Madison Square Garden.

Thursday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX
The First Annual Miss Dog Beauty Pageant

If you've ever watched a beauty pageant and thought a contestant was a real dog, it wouldn't be an insult in this case. Canines participate in this competition, and just like the human versions, each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia will have one entrant vying for the honor. The dogs even get to don their favorite evening wear. Jillian Barberie ("Good Day Live") and John O'Hurley ("Seinfeld") are the hosts.

7 p.m. on 38-WB
Movie: Pitch Black

There's terror in outer space in this effective 2000 thriller, as a vessel's crew crashes on a sweltering planet where strange creatures only come out at night. Complicating matters is the fact one of the stranded individuals (Vin Diesel, "XXX") is a killer who was being transported to a prison at the time of the forced landing.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS
Without a Trace

In Part 1 of "Fallout," the show's two-part season finale, Malone (Anthony LaPaglia) and his investigators face dual crises. As they try to determine the whereabouts of a woman (guest star Marsha Dietlein Bennet) who vanished from her office building, hostages are taken at the site by her kidnapper (guest star Tom Irwin), causing the federal agents to modify their original approach to the case.

9 p.m. on 19-PBS

Race: The Power of an Illusion

The reasons why race matters — or shouldn't — are probed in "The House We Live In," the concluding episode of the three-part documentary miniseries. The attitudes and institutions that contribute to the racial makeup of modern society are surveyed, with an eye toward possible matters of discrimination that silently may be condoned by the United States' legal system.

Saturday Best Bets

6:30 p.m. on HBO
Movie: Spirit: Stallion of the Cimarron

The DreamWorks studio continued its bid to rival Disney's animation shop with this heartfelt, lavishly illustrated 2002 saga about one horse's quest. The story sends stallion Spirit across the frontier of the West, where his various encounters lead him into adventure. Matt Damon narrates the story, and James Cromwell ("Babe") also lends his voice. The soundtrack features original songs by rock star Bryan Adams.

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Movie: The Green Mile

Two-time Academy Award winner Tom Hanks may be the biggest name in this 1999 adaptation of a Stephen King novel, but he's far from the biggest presence. That would be Michael Clarke Duncan, who earned a best supporting actor Oscar nomination for his performance as John Coffey, a condemned prisoner with supernatural gifts, including the ability to heal others. Hanks plays a sympathetic ic guard who experiences Coffey's powers, firsthand.

7 p.m. and AMC

Movie: The Good, the Bad and the Ugly

One of Italian director Sergio Leone's classic "spaghetti Westerns" about the poncho-wearing, man-of-few-words, Man With No Name (Clint Eastwood), this lengthy and gritty 1967 saga forces the antihero to team up with two unlikely partners (Lee Van Cleef, Eli Wallach) to find a chest taining vast riches during the Civil War. This version restores previously deleted scenes and features new voice work by Eastwood and Wallach.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

The District

The late Lynne Thigpen, who played Ella Farmer on this series, is memorialized in the new episode "Ella Mae." Ella's sudden death stuns Mannion (Craig T. Nelson), who gets another shock when he is fired as police chief. He then searches for Ella's missing son (guest star William Turner). Temple and DeBreno (Sean Patrick Thomas, Jonathan LaPaglia) channel their grief over Ella's passing into the hunt for a killer.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"CATCH ME IF YOU CAN": Incredible as it may seem, the con-man story that fuels director Steven Spielberg's highly entertaining comedy-drama is true. Leonardo DiCaprio plays Frank Abagnale Jr., a master impersonator who charms others into believing he's a doctor, an airline pilot or someone else as he swindles them. Tom Hanks also stars as an FBI man determined to catch the thief. Co-star Christopher Walken earned an Oscar nomination. *** (PG-13: AS, P)

"THE EMPEROR'S CLUB": A revered professor, played by Kevin Kline ("The Big Chill"), finds his theories on education - and, consequently, his entire approach to life - challenged by a particularly bright student (Emile Hirsch) in this involving drama adapted from Ethan Canin's story "The Palace Guard." Years later, the impact remains every bit as strong for the teacher. Co-stars include Embeth Davidtz and Rob Morrow. *** (PG-13: AS, P)

"EXTREME OPS": Manufactured thrills give way to the real thing for a film crew working in the Austrian Alps in this predictable but scenic adventure. While filming a commercial, the group - including several people practiced in extreme sports - crosses paths with a Serbian war criminal who will do anything, including murder, to keep his whereabouts secret. Devon Sawa ("Final Destination"), Rupert Graves and Bridgette Wilson-Sampras star. ** (PG-13: AS, P, V)

"THE UNSAID": For evidence of how much a skilled actor can enliven a story otherwise hindered by a big dose of déjà vu, witness Andy Garcia in the central role of this melodrama. He plays a psychiatrist prompted to look into the history of a patient bothered by deeply rooted secrets. The doctor's alarmed, and personally threatened by what he discovers. Vincent Kartheiser ("Angel"), Linda Cardellini ("Scooby-Doo") and Teri Polo ("Meet the Parents") co-star. ** (R: AS, N, P, V)

"MURDER IN GREENWICH": The book by Mark Fuhrman about the 1975 murder of Connecticut teenager Martha Moxley - the crime of which Michael Skakel was convicted, 28 years later - is dramatized in a film originally made for USA Network. Christopher Meloni ("Law & Order: Special Victims Unit") plays Fuhrman, who launched his own investigation of the crime with help from a police officer (Robert Forster) who originally worked on the case. ** (R: AS, P, V)

"THE PILOT'S WIFE": When a plane goes down, killing all on board, the wife (Christine Lahti) of the man at the controls (John Heard) goes in search of details. She learns more than she expected about her husband - not just about what happened on the flight, but about the many secrets he'd kept from her throughout their marriage. Campbell Scott ("Dying Young") also stars in this 2002 drama based on a novel by Anita Shreve and originally shown on CBS. *** (PG-13: AS, P)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"ADAPTATION" (May 20): Nicolas Cage has dual roles as a screenwriter plagued by a creative block and also by his twin brother, a fellow writer who enjoys great success. (R: AS, P)

"ANTWONE FISH" (May 20): Denzel Washington makes his directing debut with this true drama, in which he plays a Navy man's (Derek Luke) psychiatrist. (PG-13: AS, P, V)

On TV

'Lucy' re-creates life, career of a beloved TV comedy icon

Lucille Ball is such a familiar and beloved American pop icon that an actress would have to be either very brave or very stupid to try playing her.

Either way, Rachel York says she has it covered.

"I've always been courageous to the point of being terribly stupid," laughs the former Broadway star, who throws herself fearlessly into the title role of "Lucy," a three-hour CBS movie premiering Sunday, May 4.

Produced by the prolific team of Craig Zadan and Neil Meron ("Chicago," "Life With Judy Garland: Me and My Shadows"), the TV movie chronicles Ball's life from her teen years (played by Madeline Zima, "The Nanny") to age 50, covering her lackluster early film career and her subsequent rebirth as a brilliant clown.

Just as the earlier "Life With Judy Garland" featured Tammy Blanchard and Judy Davis eerily re-creating Judy Garland's work in thrice-familiar movie musicals, "Lucy" calls upon its leading lady to pull off re-creations of several vintage "I Love Lucy" comedy bits, including the Vitameatavegamin pitch, the candy-wrapping assembly line and the grape-stomping scene.

"Casting the role was almost impossible," Meron concedes, "although Rachel was one of the first people we thought of because we were familiar with her work on Broadway. We auditioned a lot of actresses, but we kept coming back to Rachel, who had to be 'sold' to the network and the director. She's just a rare breed, a quadruple threat: She can sing, dance and act, and she knows where the 'funny' is."

Unlike Ball, whose early career consisted of mostly undistinguished film work, York has enjoyed critical acclaim on stage in such musicals as "The Scarlet Pimpernel," "Victor/Victoria" and "Kiss Me, Kate." However, like Ball, who was in her 30s before finding her ultimate destiny as a clown, York has had to wait until a comparable age for what may turn out to be her own ticket to movie and TV fame.

"I knew this project would require something that not every actress could do," York says candidly. "So many times I go out on auditions for the girl next door, and they have their pick, and it's usually 'her with the blonde hair,' not me. But in this case, it was a character that required technique and skills that I knew I had, plus the courage to take the leap."

If York took a damn-the-torpedoes attitude toward her own role, co-star Danny Pino freely admits he was intimidated by the notion of playing Ball's first husband, Desi Amaz. The son of Cuban parents - his father is from the same Cuban province as Amaz's family - Pino says his apprehension only increased when that notion became a reality.

Fortunately, he landed the "Lucy" gig as he was finishing work as villainous Armadillo Quintero on "The Shield," the FX series starring Michael Chiklis, who had played Curly in a Zadan-Meron TV movie about the Three Stooges.

"I thought, 'Oh, man, there is no way I'm going to be able to pull this off. It's going to look like an impersonation,'" Pino recalls. "Michael said, 'Look, I know what's going through your head. Do all your research, every book you can read, every picture you can see, every song you can hear. Immerse yourself in it. Then work on the physical side of playing the character. But once you have all that, let it all go. That way you aren't giving an imitation, you're giving an essence.' And I kept hearing that throughout the filming."

York says she similarly used a "total immersion" process to absorb Ball's distinctive voice and mannerisms, but stopped shy of spending hours in front of a mirror. In fact, the TV movie scenes showing Ball doing just that to perfect her own comedy routines were among the hardest for York.

"The mirror was almost an obstacle for me because while I was playing her, I felt so much like her, felt her soul and her heart, and I walked like her and talked "You've heard of 'la casa chica,' which is 'the smaller house.' You could have the smaller house with your mistress and potentially illegitimate children as long as you maintained stability, both financial and emotional, in your own home with your own children and your legitimate wife. Rachel York re-creates several familiar sketches from "I Love Lucy" as part of her portrayal of the title role in "Lucy," a three-hour CBS movie premiering Sunday.
